30 held for observation in radiation mishap

CARSON (AP)—One man was hospitalized, about 30 persons were held for observation and a three-block area around a freight yard was cordoned off briefly today after radiation leaked from a cannister, authorities said.

Stan Grant, acting administrator of Harbor General Hospital, said an unidentified man was admitted to the facility complaining of nausea after his exposure to radiation from the three-by-four foot cannister being moved in the yard.

Grant said the man initially was reported in good condition after the 6:40 a.m. incident, but would be held for observation up to 48 hours.

The area around the freight yard was blocked off by Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies for about an hour. Traffic was allowed to resume after firemen and employes of the Northrop Corp., which was expecting delivery of the green cannister, determined the area was safe.

Grant said about 30 persons in the area were asked to remain in the yard to determine the extent of their exposure.

Contents of the cannister were not immediately known, but a sheriff's spokesman said it was moved to Northrop's plant in nearby Hawthorne.

Sgt. Mervyn Poppleton said the leak was discovered after two forklift operators reported the cannister was "hot to the touch."

Hunt West End rapist

Montclair and Ontario police are searching for a tall, thin, man who broke into two apartments this morning and attempted to rape and rob women occupants.

The first incident was reported about 3 a.m. by a Montclair woman who told officers that a tall, thin, black man had forced his way into her apartment on Fremont Street.

She said the man attempted to rob her and then attacked her with a knife.

The police said the woman was slashed by the assailant, suffering a minor knife wound in the struggle.

The woman's screaming forced the assailant flee the apartment.

At 5:10 a.m. police raced to an apartment complex on Harvard Street in Ontario after a man broke into a woman's apartment there. The woman said she was awakened when the tall, thin, black man wearing a sleeveless shirt pushed open the door.

A 14-year-old Montclair boy was killed and three other teen-agers injured Monday afternoon when a small pickup truck went out of control coming down Mt. Baldy Road, overturned and crashed into a hillside.

Lonnie Thompson of 5043 Highland Ave., was hurled from the passenger side of the truck cab, was pronounced dead at Pomona Valley Community Hospital following the 4 p.m. accident.

The driver of the vehicle, Ronald Lee Frusher, 17, his younger brother, Steven Allen Frusher, 15, sons of Montclair police Lt. Jerry Frusher, and Robert Murphy, 15, of 1722 Mulberry Ave., Upland, also were injured.

They were rushed to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. According to a hospital spokesman, Murphy today is in serious condition; Ronald Lee Frusher is in fair condition; and Steven Allen Frusher was given emergency treatment for his injuries and later released.

California Highway Patrol officers said the younger Frusher boy and Murphy were riding in the bed of the pickup truck.

Patrolmen M. H. Beck said the vehicle was southbound on Mt. Baldy Road.

U.S. threatens funds cutoff

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Operators of the county's Comprehensive Employment Training Act program (CETA) were accused today of nepotism, mismanagement of funds and possible diversion of their allocations for private gain.

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes said he is turning the report over to Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp for possible criminal prosecution.

The federal government which has cooperated with the investigation announced Monday that it was dissatisfied with the way the program was being run and that unless all of the county's problems are straightened out by the end of the month it will withdraw a substantial part of its subsidy.

Charges were part of a task force report by a special investigation team under the direction of Chief County Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford.

It stated the investigation confirmed specific charges that the Community Care and Development Services Inc. (CCDS) which runs the multi million dollar program for the Department of Community Development has "violated CETA regulations concerning conflicts of interests, improper hiring practice, mismanagement, inadequate control and failure to pay bills on time."

CETA has a $127.7 million budget for the next 16 months and has charge of employing 30,000 unemployed or underemployed workers throughout the county, more than 1,000 in the valley.

As a result of that directive the Department of Community Development has been contacting cities throughout the county offering them CETA slots to fill.

In the valley, Claremont has been offered 17 positions fully paid if that city could hire temporary workers right now. Other cities in the valley also reportedly were contacted.

Specifically, the task force found that some of the key employes of the CCDS were related to high level employes of the parent Department of Community Development, a form of nepotism.

Two members of the Los Angeles County Manpower Advisory Council are on the management staff of CCDS. The executive officer of CCDS is an officer in a corporation that owns and leases real estate to CCDS, stated the task force.

Moreover, the task force found that a check of 19 cases disclosed that none of the workers hired resided in their areas as required by a CETA rule.

Of the 17 sub-contractors whose cases were examined, only three had been compensated for their work up to now.

"It is apparent," the task force declared, "that these funds were utilized for other purposes by CCDS."

Hufford said he also has been informed that a federal agency which helped along with the probe "may have identified a diversion of payments for personal gain which arose through collusion by a CCDS employe."

The task force recommended that Clayton Cottrell director of the Department of Community Development, explain the alleged irregularities, suspend further county funding to CCDS, establish more departmental control over the CETA program and find a better way of control over the agency to insure the integrity and fairness of the operation.

There was no comment from Cottrell regarding the report.

Alaskan pipeline is bombed, no damage

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A blast from an explosive device of undertermined nature damaged the exterior of a section of the trans-Alaska pipeline but the flow of oil was not affected, authorities said.

State Police Lt. George Pollitt said the blast, which damaged insulation wrapped around the outside of the line but not the pipe itself, occurred about 9 p.m. Monday about 17 miles north of Fairbanks. In that area, the pipeline runs about one mile north of a cafe and five miles off a state highway.

The FBI and state troopers in Fairbanks could not be reached for comment following their onsite investigation, but Henry Mowell, operations vice president of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. in Anchorage, said, "It was some kind of manmade happening."

In Washington, a spokesman at FBI headquarters said the explosion was under investigation and that he had no additional information to report.

Officials have said it would take an explosion stronger than that produced by a military hand grenade to rupture the steel pipe.

Pollitt said authorities had been notified by Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. "that an explosive device had been detonated near the pipeline ..." He added that troopers at the scene "confirmed that some damage to the insulation had been done by what appeared to be a blast of some type."

Pollitt said troopers were bringing pieces of the debris back to Fairbanks for analysis.

An Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. official said there was no halt or slowdown in oil flow through the pipe following the explosion.

The leading edge of Prudhoe Bay oil now in the pipeline moved only two miles through the line Monday as crews worked out some bugs at Pump Station No. 9, according to Alyeska officials.

Pump 9 was brought on line early to make up for pumping capacity lost in an explosion that destroyed Pump 8 on July 8.

Miss Torrisi said she "has a thing" about pierced ears and wears two earrings in one ear and three in the other herself.

A snaky way to end our dry spell

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Clifford Casey, itinerant shoer of horses by trade and mountain man by breeding, says this is the way to make it rain: "Take a dead blacksnake and hang it in a tree with its head down."

"Rain will come within 48 hours. I've tried it and it works," he said.

"Back in the old days when a long dry spell came on like we're having now," Casey told columnist John Parris of The Asheville Citizen. "My daddy would get out and hunt him a blacksnake and kill it and hang it in a tree to bring on rain. All the old folks believed in the blacksnake as a rainmaker.

"Of course, you'll get an argument from a lot of folks that there's nothing to it. But that's the way it is with folks who've never tried something."

The big problem, Casey says, is that blacksnakes are as scarce as rain showers.

Emergency surgery for Bishop Sheen

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, 82, has undergone emergency heart surgery here and "is doing well, considering all circumstances," his doctor said today.

Dr. Michael Bruno said the retired head of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith was operated on last Friday at Lenox Hill Hospital "as a lifesaving procedure" after suffering a heart attack.

"Bishop Sheen is doing well, considering all things, in particular his age. He is not out of danger at this time," the doctor said in a statement.

Millions of Catholics and non-Catholics know him as the television host of "Life is Worth Living."

No water rationing but higher cost

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The director of the state Water Resources department says mandatory water rationing may be not be needed in Southern California because people are doing a good job of conserving water.

But while the era of rationing may not come, the era of big increases in water prices will, said Richard Robie during a visit Monday.

Robie, here to kick off a program of distribution of water saving kits, said the high prices will hit Southern California in 1983 when the current, inexpensive electrical contracts expire.

His department now pays three-tenths of a cent per kilowatt hour for electricity to pump water, then added: "We will be very lucky to get a new rate of 3 cents per kilowatt hour."

The present cost of pumping water over the mountains from Northern California to Southern California is $10 per acre foot, Robie said.

Because the drought is centered in Northern California, residents there have been asked to cut back drastically in consumption and have responded, achieving reductions of up to 60 per cent of normal, Robie said.

However, Southern Californians also are doing a good job of conservation, Robie said, suggesting that mandatory rationing may not be needed. In Los Angeles, residents have been asked to cut water use by 10 per cent.

Robie supervised the startup of a six-week program in which state and local governments are combining to distribute 374,000 free water-saving kits including devices like shower-flow restrictors and filters to cut the amount of water used in toilets.

Vengeance killed Margaret's romance with Townsend?

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, motivated by both personal dislike and concern for the royal family, was instrumental in blocking the marriage of his sister-in-law, Princess Margaret, and war hero Peter Townsend 22 years ago, according to a new biography of the princess.

Philip bore a grievance against Townsend because the Royal Air Force fighter pilot, as an adviser to King George VI, had counseled the king to prolong the courtship and delay the marriage of Philip and Elizabeth, the future queen, the book says.

Austrian author Willi Frischauer's "Margaret — Princess without a Cause" paints a vivid picture of the love affairs of the two princesses and of an electrifying clash of temperaments behind the scenes at Buckingham Palace.

Margaret's abortive romance with the divorced Townsend was headline news around the world in 1955, when she finally announced she would not marry him.

The princess' eventual marriage five years later to photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones broke down last year and the couple, who have two children, live separately. Townsend is now married and lives in France.

Frischauer writes that after World War II Philip, a naval officer courting Elizabeth, and Townsend, a military member of the royal household, were "incompatible and jousting in a narrow space big enough for only one."

King George, who had no son, admired the handsome and dashing air force officer and soon promoted him to deputy master of the household. "I'd have liked a boy like Townsend," the author says the king once told Margaret.

According to palace insiders, Townsend, as the king's closest adviser, inspired a plan in 1946 to keep Elizabeth and Philip from a quick marriage so the king could "observe Philip over a time at close quarters before deciding whether he could become a member of the royal family," Frischauer writes.

Philip was furious when he found out about Townsend's intervention. The king followed Townsend's advice, the author says, but in November 1947, Philip and Elizabeth married, with the king's blessing.

Margaret then became the center of attention. Though linked by gossip to every available young man of birth and rank, the only man in her life was Townsend, Frischauer writes.

But the 12-year friendship and romance of Margaret and Townsend was doomed. The king's death in February 1952 "robbed the lovers of a supporter who loved them both as much as they loved each other," Frischauer says, and a group of courtiers headed by Philip began applying pressure on Margaret to drop Townsend.

Philip's personal dislike for him was combined with court fears of an uproar like that of 1936, when Margaret's uncle refused to give up American divorcee Wallis Simpson and abdicated before he could be crowned Edward VIII. Others who lined up against Townsend included then-Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Anglican church leaders.

The queen, though sympathetic with her sister, told her that the affair was "undermining the dignity of the throne."

Chowchilla kidnap suspects make surprise move . . . plead guilty

OAKLAND (AP) — Three young men who pleaded guilty to the strange ransom kidnap of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver remain friends and will wage a legal battle together to avoid life in prison without parole.

"They are relieved to get it over with and they are still friends," said public defender Lester Gendron after his client, James Schoenfeld, 25, his brother, Richard, 24, and Frederick N. Woods, 25, ended a year-long mystery Monday and withdrew their innocent pleas.

The three defendants, in a swift and stunning move, pleaded guilty to 27 counts of kidnap but retained their innocent pleas on five charges of kidnap with bodily harm.

David Minier, district attorney in Madera County, where the abduction at gunpoint occurred on July 15, 1976, dropped 18 counts of armed robbery in exchange for the guilty pleas. The robbery counts involved personal trinkets taken from the youngsters.

"Justice has been served," Minier said, but he vowed to fight for a conviction on the bodily harm charges.

Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan of Riverside, called out of retirement to handle one of the most bizarre crimes in California history, set Aug. 5 for a hearing on the bodily harm charges. Each defendant waived a trial by jury and Deegan will decide their guilt or innocence.

If convicted on the more serious charges, they could be sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole.

Gendron said he and the younger Schoenfeld's attorney, Ted Merrill, had been prepared for two weeks to avoid a trial by plea bargaining. Woods' attorney, Herbert Yanowitz, fought bitterly to quash a search warrant of the Woods' Portola Valley family estate south of San Francisco where the most damaging evidence against them was found.

Yanowitz refused to discuss his change in strategy as he left the courtroom but Gendron outlined what he called a hopeless case for the defense.

"It was an impossible case to try in view of the evidence," he said outside court. "It was an overwhelming prosecution case, and we felt the best defense would be to compromise as best we could."

The three defendants and their lawyers had reviewed the 4,800 pieces of evidence against them last Wednesday in a personal inspection. That included a $5 million ransom note found at the Woods estate along with a detailed kidnap plan and a list of the kidnap victims.

The captives had been imprisoned in an old moving van which had been buried in a rock quarry owned by the Woods family. They dug their way to freedom 17 hours later.

"The evidence against them was just immense," said Gendron. "I think Mr. Woods held out because he thought he could get a better deal."

The three defendants, ashen and pale after a year in jail, relaxed after the hearing and shared laughter several times. They will continue to be held in lieu of $1 million bail.

State briefs

New Van Houten juror

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Leslie Van Houten trial jury enters its 15th day of deliberation today with a new juror and no sign of an immediate verdict.

The jury suffered a setback Monday when an ailing male juror was hospitalized and had to be replaced by a female alternate.

Superior Court Judge Edward Hinz ordered the panel to start work all over again, discarding their previous 70 hours of discussions "as if they had not taken place."

"You must set aside all past deliberations and begin anew," Hinz told the jury, now composed of seven women and five men.

He said a fair verdict could be had only with "the full participation of 12 jurors," thus requiring the restart of deliberations.

Miss Van Houten, 27, a former Charles Manson follower, was convicted of murder and conspiracy in 1971 for the Tate-LaBianca murders. She was granted a new trial because her attorney died on a camping trip during the first trial.

School financing plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sixteen potential points of disagreement face the legislative committee which started work this week on a five-year, $4.9-billion plan to reform California school financing.

The six-man committee created last month by the Senate and Assembly formally convened Monday, but the discussion of specific points was delayed to working sessions starting today.

Issues facing the committee include how much extra state money should go into public schools over the next five years, how much of that money should substitute for local taxes, and how much should be used to improve education.

California's 1,100 school districts must adopt their 1977-78 school year budgets by Aug. 8. So they need to know by early next week how much extra money the state will provide, school finance committee chairman Leroy Greene said.

Contracts cost taxpayers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New labor contracts will cost county taxpayers at least $57.3 million, say county officials.

But the county's chief administrative officer, Harry Hufford, said Monday that the hike was "significantly below the 7.5 per cent increase authorized by the governor for state employes and below other major settlements in the private sector."

Employes' contracts covering 79,000 employes will increase wages and fringe benefits by 5.8 per cent, Michael Gotthainer, the county's assistant administrative officer, said Monday.

Gotthainer also said the cost to taxpayers could rise to $58 million after contract negotiations with county craft workers in September.

Suspect pleads innocent

WESTMINSTER (AP) — A 54-year-old furniture upholsterer has pleaded innocent to charges of attempted murder and solicitation of murder in an alleged scheme to torture and dismember nude models at a remote desert shack.

Fred Berre Douglas of Costa Mesa entered the plea Monday at his arraignment in West Orange County Municipal Court. A review of his $150,000 bail is scheduled Wednesday, with preliminary hearings beginning Aug. 3.

Douglas was arrested last Wednesday by two undercover policewomen posing as prostitutes. Authorities said Douglas hired the policewomen to pose for nude pictures, then drove them to a remote area near Yucca Valley, about 30 miles north of Palm Springs in Riverside County.

Douglas was arrested at the desert shack.

No Long Beach terminal?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Opinion seems to be growing that the $500-million oil tanker terminal proposed for Long Beach will never be built.

The Sacramento Bee said Monday the administration of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is maneuvering to avoid blame for failure of negotiations for the terminal, where tankers would bring Alaskan oil for pipelining to Texas, where it would be refined for Midwest customers.

A Los Angeles news source quoted Tom Quinn, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s Air Resources Board chairman, as saying he is "not very optimistic" about the terminal, which he says would be an air pollution problem.

The source also quoted Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., whose district is involved, as saying there's about a 95 per cent chance that negotiations with Standard Oil of Ohio would break down.

School integration plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles school board seems reluctant to explore all alternatives to its rejected integration plan for the city's 600-square-mile school district, a court-appointed overseer says.

In his second report, UCLA law professor Monroe Price also said Monday that the administrative team directing the revision "seems still not completely certain" of its role in deciding the shape of the desegregation plan.

Price was named to oversee the board by Superior Court Judge Paul Egly after the judge rejected the board's initial proposal as inadequate.

State taking Interstate 15E freeway bids

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state is calling for bids on the first half of the Interstate 15E freeway in southern Riverside County.

The administration of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., under pressure, approved the project earlier this year.

The four-lane, $6-million link will run five miles north from Interstate 15 near Murrieta Hot Springs. The Department of Transportation said Monday the second five-mile link, also costing $6 million, will complete the freeway to Sun City.

Department spokesman Dick Friedman said a bid on the first half will be selected Sept. 1, shortly after the second half is offered for bid. He said the entire freeway should be completed by autumn 1978.

The highway wasn't on the department's original six-year construction program. But department director Adriana Gianturco included it among $36 million worth of additional projects in January after criticism from the state Highway Commission and others, who accused the administration of dragging its feet on road building.

State's largest fire contained

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Aided by the weather, fire fighters today contained California's biggest forest fire of 1977.

Containment, which means a 10-mile-long line has been built around the entire burn area, is the first major step toward putting out the blaze that seared 3,800 acres in the Angeles National Forest.

"We don't expect it to jump the line now, unless the weather conditions flare up," said a U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "We should have full control later today."

One person was killed and another was critically injured when two helicopters mapping the fire collided Sunday night.

The fire began Sunday morning about 30 miles north of downtown Los Angeles and a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said reports indicated the blaze may have been touched off by bullets used at a designated shooting area.

The type of powder used at the site was being investigated. Black powder could legally be used at the site, the spokesman said, but tracer bullets would be illegal.

Hot weather and high winds helped fuel the fire Sunday, but on Monday, the winds died down, permitting the 1,000 fire fighters to clear a 10-mile long ring around the smouldering flames.

"It looks beautiful," Russ Leland of the California Division of Forestry said. "The winds have died down. We don't expect trouble unless the winds blow back up."

Other blazes

Officials in Alaska say they are having difficulty fighting blazes that cover 400,000 acres of federal forest land.

The hottest spot was the Seward Peninsula with two large fires, burning a total of 195,000 acres. A cluster of lightning-caused fires south of Granite Mountain burned together, destroying 70,000 in 20 hours.

Changing weather has brought some relief to crews battling fires in New Jersey and Maine.

Ontario man faces hearing on truck crash

An Ontario man accused of driving a car that collided with a Montclair fire truck en route to a fire July 16, leaving one person dead and four injured, was scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing today in West Valley Municipal Court.

Barre Robert Mormann, 21, is being accused of one count of manslaughter and four counts of felony drunk driving.

A complaint filed in court alleges that Mormann was driving north on Ramona Avenue in Montclair when his car struck the rear of the fire truck traveling west on Holt Boulevard. Firemen were responding to a report of a trash fire.

The collision impact caused the fire truck to go out of control and it hit a center divider before rolling on top of another car, driven by a woman.

Killed in the accident was fireman Robert Anderson. Fire Capt. John Pruiksma remains in a hospital with injuries suffered in the accident.

Pre-school day camps begin today

The Pomona Park and Recreation Department will begin today new sessions of pre-school day camps.

The classes, lasting four weeks, are open to youngsters ages 3 years 6 months to 5 years. Camp sessions meet on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at Palomares Park Community Center, 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.; and at Westmont Park Community Center, 10 a.m. to noon.

The $15 registration fee is payable at the time of registration at the community centers. Activities include cookouts, arts and crafts, storytime, outdoor play, snacks and field trip. Each camp has a limit of 20 children.

Two more fires set in grove

Another acre was blackened during two fires Monday in a dead orange grove on the Pomona-La Verne border at Fulton Road south of Bonita Avenue.

La Verne firemen extinguished a fire in the grove Saturday afternoon after four acres had been blackened.

The Monday fires occurred at 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., firemen said.

Firemen believe the fires were set by juveniles playing with matches.

Califano reported drafting proposal

HEW plan to lower welfare aid to subsidized tenants?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources say HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is drafting a plan that would reduce welfare payments to tenants of federally subsidized housing, despite his public assurance this would not be considered for President Carter's welfare reform package.

A high government official told The Associated Press on Monday that the idea is one of three options the HEW secretary will send Carter this week for possible inclusion in the welfare reform package to be unveiled Aug. 4.

A lobbyist familiar with the subject also said two high administration officials had confirmed Califano's intentions.

The disclosure on July 14 that Califano was considering the welfare reduction for subsidized housing residents resulted in a storm of protest from home builders, civil rights groups, mayors, governors, labor groups and officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Califano was considering the alternative in an effort to meet cost limitations set by Carter for welfare reform and to remedy an inequity he saw.

But last Wednesday, Califano met with a group of mayors, governors and county officials who were at his office protesting that move and other parts of the welfare reform package. Califano said at the meeting and at a subsequent news conference he had given up the idea of counting the housing subsidies toward welfare payments.

He said the issue "will not be part of the welfare reform proposal," but would be discussed for possible inclusion in the fiscal 1979 budget.

Eileen Shanahan, assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare for public affairs, said Monday night that "some very complicated stuff involving housing and welfare is under consideration. The total doorslam on this last Wednesday may not have been accurate. The impression left then was incorrect."

She refused to provide details of the proposal because "it is still being discussed and nothing has been finally decided."

A government source said HEW's three options were: a percentage reduction of welfare payments to residents of subsidized housing; application of a so-called "fiscal dividend" toward welfare rather than toward rent; or a combination of those options.

The first option is similar to the earlier proposal which raised a storm. It would give a family living in subsidized housing a smaller welfare check than recipients in private housing.

HEW's original proposal would have reduced cash welfare payments by $900 million. The current option was said to call for a reduction in total welfare payments of between $400 million and $900 million.

This would help Califano meet Carter's order that the new system not cost any more than the old one. Califano also has said it is unfair for some welfare recipients to receive the benefit of housing subsidies while others do not.

One government estimate is that one out of 13 families that would be eligible for welfare under the new system lives in subsidized housing.

Opponents argue that the reductions in tenants' welfare checks might be so large that they would be forced to move from subsidized housing to cheap, slum housing.

HEW's second option is more complicated. Federal law limits the rent in subsidized housing to no more than 25 per cent of a tenant's income.

The new welfare system will raise the income of some current welfare recipients and lower it for others.

The 25-per-cent limitation on rents would allow rent increases for those families whose income would rise and force rent decreases for those whose income would drop.

HEW proposes to forego the rent increases and instead allow tenants to keep the extra money as part of their welfare payment.

Opponents argue that landlords of subsidized housing might need the rent increases to offset the rent decreases mandated by law for those whose incomes would drop.

The government apparently does not yet have firm figures to support either side.

Death rate down; life expectancy rises dramatically

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring large-scale war or some other catastrophe, one of every eight U.S. citizens will be over the age of 65 by the year 2000, the Census Bureau is predicting.

In a report released Monday, the government agency based its forecast on a declining death rate.

New statistics indicates show the country will have to consider changes in its pension, medical care and educational systems, as well as make decisions that will affect the quality of life of aged citizens, the report said.

It said life expectancy has risen to 81 for women and 72 for men, nearly three years longer than expected a few years ago.

Because of fewer heart attacks, the report noted, the death rate of adults over 35 declined much more rapidly between 1973 and 1975 than it did all during the previous decade.

Signe Wetrogan, a bureau demographer, said officials didn't know whether improved medical techniques and lower cholesterol diets were responsible for the decrease in heart attacks.

The report said the median age of the population has increased from 27.9 in 1970 to 29 in 1976. Figures show that by the turn of the century, the median age will range from 32.5 to 37.3. Half of the people in the country are older than the median age and half are younger.

The study said the over-65 population, an estimated 22.9 million in 1976, will increase to 31.8 million in the year 2000, or move up from roughly 11 per cent of the population to 12 per cent in a forecast population of 260 million.

A major jump in the elderly population is predicted in 2030 when the combination of declining mortality and the aging of the post World War II baby boom generation will swell the elderly population to 55 million. That means anywhere from 14 to 22 per cent of the nation's population would be over 65, posing serious social and economic consequences.

2 Pomona brothers wounded by sniper

Two Pomona brothers were wounded, one seriously, Monday night when they were struck by sniper fire in an alley near their home.

The most seriously wounded was Paul Bruce Perez, 16, who was struck under his right arm by a bullet which passed through his right lung and lodged near his heart. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred to Loma Linda University Medical Center. He was reported in fair and stable condition in the intensive-care unit.

Paul's brother, Viviano Perez, 17, was struck in the back and was released after treatment at the Pomona hospital. The youths' mother, Olga E. Perez, 36, who was with them, was not hit.

Officer Michael Bouse reported that the victims were returning home in their car and had driven into the alley in the rear of the 1800 block of S. Park Avenue when 10 to 15 shots were fired from behind portable buildings located on the grounds of Garey High School.

The victims' auto and their home were struck several times in the fusillade.

No reason for the attack was offered.

Man held in string of motel burglaries

Pomona police early today arrested a suspect in connection with six recent motel burglaries, several involving sexual molestation of women.

The arrest came less than 24 hours after the latest such incident was reported by two Fresno women, one of whom was molested in a W. Holt Avenue motel.

The suspect was arrested shortly after 1 a.m. on the parking lot of the Zodiac Elks Lodge at 2005 W. Holt Ave. He was identified as Conrad Lee Haywood, 44, of Pomona. The arrest was made by officers of the department's Major Crimes Task Force who reported that Haywood had a Los Angeles Police Department officer's revolver which was stolen after the officer was attacked and shot in Los Angeles in 1974.

Officers were sent to the lodge parking lot to investigate reports that there was a man there carrying a concealed weapon. When they confronted Haywood there, they said they saw a revolver stuck in his waistband.

They reported that Haywood placed the weapon under the car he was next to before he was seized at gunpoint by the officers. The revolver turned out to be the one taken from the LAPD officer, they said.

The latest motel incident was reported shortly after 6 a.m. Monday by the Fresno women. They said they were wakened by a man standing at the foot of their bed, armed with a knife. One woman, 70 years old, was tied with a cord cut from a lamp. She was placed in the bathroom. The other, 30, also was tied and was molested before the intruder fled with about $50 in cash, some items of jewelry and several credit cards.

A similar break-in and robbery occurred early the morning of July 21. Two Indiana couples were bound in their motel room and robbed of cash, about $1,500 in travelers' checks and jewelry. They also were tied with lamp cords. And on July 18, a 31-year-old woman was tied and molested by a man she found in her motel room when she returned after emptying the trash.

Investigators said the suspect matches the description of the motel intruder and they said they possessed some physical evidence. Haywood was booked on suspicion of a variety of charges including rape, burglary and the attempted murder of the Los Angeles policeman.

Brown makes pledge to South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown today ended talks with South Korean officials on the U.S. troop withdrawal plan, pledging continued military support and reassuring Seoul that the United States will not negotiate with North Korea behind its back.

A communique issued at the conclusion of two days of talks said the two sides had agreed on formation of a combined military command. It also described in general terms the planned phased pullout of 33,000 U.S. ground troops, and said the Carter administration would ask Congress to approve a new military aid program for South Korea.

Brown and his 11-member delegation then left for Tokyo to brief Japanese officials on the talks.

The communique said Brown and South Korean Defense Minister Suh Jyong-chul noted that Communist North Korea has strengthened itself militarily in recent years and that "the North Korean threat remains serious."

"It is essential to maintain and strengthen the defense capabilities of the Republic of Korea, at a state of readiness sufficient to deter a renewal of hostilities on the Korea peninsula," the communique said.

It then went on to list, without specifying the cost, the elements of the proposed military aid program — the transfer of U.S. military equipment, an increase in military sales credits for Seoul and continued support for "general Korean force improvement."

A senior American official has said the aid program will amount to $1.9 billion over four years. The U.S. withdrawal, a pullout of virtually all American ground troops, is expected to take four or five years.

The communique also said Brown reaffirmed that the United States "would not enter any negotiations on the future of Korea with North Korea without the participation of the Republic of Korea."

This was an apparent effort to ease South Korean fears that the United States, as it did in the case of China and Taiwan, might suddenly open a bilateral dialogue with North Korea, bypassing Seoul.

The communique said the first group of 6,000 U.S. soldiers will be withdrawn by the end of 1978, and the remaining troops will be "carefully" phased out after that.

The headquarters and two brigades of the 2nd Infantry Division, the principal Army unit here, will remain in Korea until the final phase of the withdrawal, it said.

The communique said both sides agreed that "compensatory measures will be implemented in advance or in parallel with the withdrawals."

Brown's talks with Suh and South Korean President Park Chung-hee were marked by repeated reassurances — including one in a letter from President Carter to Park — that the United States would honor its treaty commitment to defend South Korea.

"So long as an American security commitment exists, no one should have any doubt about our intention of honoring it," Brown said at a news conference.

In response to a Korean questioner who said Carter had offered no sound reasons for the withdrawal, Brown said it would help to stabilize the situation in Northeast Asia.

"A more stable political situation would exist if the balance of military power on the peninsula does not depend on the presence of U.S. ground forces," he said.

Toasting Suh at a dinner Monday night, Brown said: "You've had the vision to recognize that the conditions of the past have changed, and that long-lasting mutual security requires that our partnership be deepened and that it be oriented toward a stable, long-term situation."

$2,000 theft at home building site in Upland

Burglars broke into the garages of several homes under construction in the Upland area over the weekend, taking more than $2,000 in lighting fixtures, paint, and linoleum.

Upland police said the first burglary was reported by Crowell-Leventhal Homes early Monday morning when workmen discovered a garage door had been pryed open at a new home under construction at 19th Street and Mountain Avenue.

The burglars had taken nearly $1,500 worth of new linoleum and tile.

The contractors at Country Meadows Estates on 13th Street between Mountain and Benson avenues in Upland later reported that burglars had broken into the garages of several homes under construction and stole more than $600 in paint and hanging light fixtures.

'Hungry' teen-agers nabbed in Ontario house burglary

Two teen-agers who said they were "hungry" were arrested Monday evening by Ontario police after they "doggie" crawled through a door at the rear of a home in the 900 block of east Princeton Avenue in Ontario.

The police said the two youths, one 15 and the other 16, were seen by a relative of the homeowner who was watching the house.

The witness said he saw the youths go into the backyard of the home and he called police.

Police caught one of the youths still inside of the residence and the other, who was riding a bicycle, a short distance away.

Both youths claimed that they had entered the home to find food because they were extremely hungry

'Seal of approval' for Lance in stock sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sworn testimony from Budget Director Bert Lance and the "imminent" sale of 200,000 shares of stock in the Atlanta bank he once headed are defusing a threatened Senate investigation into the personal finances of the top Carter administration official.

One senator hearing Lance's explanations of various allegations Monday said it was clear that members of the Senate Governmental Operations Committee were ready to vote the budget director "the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., who insisted last week that Lance respond in public to "serious" allegations of misconduct, said he believes the President's budget director was victimized by investigative reporters.

"You've been smeared from one end of the country to the other and in my feeling, unjustly," Ribicoff told Lance.

"There isn't anything that has developed that in any way impugns your character, your honesty or your ability," he said. "I believe the committee has done you a favor in allowing you to appear."

Lance's path was smoothed by the announcement Sunday night that the stock he owns in the National Bank of Georgia is likely to be sold soon, perhaps as early as Wednesday.

Lance had promised voluntarily to sell the stock before the end of the year and Carter, noting the securities had dropped in value and were proving difficult to sell at an advantageous price, had asked the committee to grant an extension.

Ribicoff said the request will be revived only if the pending sale falls through.

Other senators indicated, however, that the panel will need to look into the background of the purchaser of the stock for possible conflicts of interest. No details of the pending sale have been released, and the identity of the prospective buyer has not been disclosed.

Lance, who still will retain stock of the bank he used to head in Calhoun, Ga., has promised not to involve himself in any banking matters as long as he remains director of the Office of Management and Budget.

On another subject, committee members accepted Lance's assurances that the refinancing of his stock purchases through a $3.4 million loan from the First National Bank of Chicago a few days before his selection as OMB head last January was proper

Includes compromise on water projects

Public works bill to Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $10.4 billion public works spending bill, containing a compromise on 18 controversial water projects that one lawmaker said was "written in the White House," is on its way to anticipated approval by President Carter.

The measure was passed 318-61 in the House and by voice vote in the Senate on Monday.

At a televised meeting with townspeople in Yazoo City, Miss., last week, Carter said he was "very grateful" to Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the principal architect of the compromise, "and others who supported my position."

"Without any question, this bill was written in the White House," said Rep. John T. Myers, R-Ind.

The measure provides funds for nine of 18 projects which Carter wanted killed on grounds that they were not worth their financial and environmental costs. It omits funds for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee, which the President opposes.

The water projects included in the bill despite Carter's original objections to them are Applegate Lake, Ore.; Atchafalaya River, La.; Cache Basin, Ark.; Columbia Dam, Tenn.; Hillsdale Lake, Kan.; Richard B. Russell Dam, Ga. and S.C.; Tallahala Creek, Miss.; Auburn, Calif., and Bayou Bodcau, La.

The bill also gives Congress the power to override within 45 days any presidential decision to proceed with production of the new neutron bomb, designed to kill with intense radiation while leaving buildings relatively unharmed.

Carter has not yet announced whether he will order the new weapon into production.

Debate in both houses indicated that the fate of the Clinch River reactor may not be settled for good.

In the House, its supporters said a separate bill authorizing the reactor would be considered in September.

In the Senate, Stennis said the matter would be "wide open for consideration" in a separate money bill which also is expected to come up in September.

In considering the public works bill earlier this year, the Senate voted to appropriate $75 million for the project. But a conference committee appointed to reconcile differences between House and Senate versions of the bill agreed to delete the funds because legislation to authorize an appropriation had not been passed in the House.

In an accompanying report, the committee said the funds would be provided in a supplemental appropriation bill if authorizing legislation is enacted. A bill to authorize $150 million is under consideration in the House Science and Technology Committee.

G. CLEVE TURNER

G. Cleve Turner of Claremont has been appointed acting associate vice president for university research and development at Cal State Fullerton.

A member of the university faculty since 1960, Turner has conceived and carried out 25 grants totaling more than $1.2 million.

President L. Donald Shields said the appointment is one of his first major moves in implementing the recent recommendations of the commission on the university's future.

One of the recommendations is to increase significantly the extramural or nonstate support for university programs and scholarly and creative activities.

It will be Turner's responsibility to coordinate and develop nonstate support through faculty research grants and contracts and through corporate and private fund-raising activities.

He will also coordinate and develop support for programs of special educational interest to the university and the communities it serves. These will include cooperative projects of mutual interest to the university and business, industry or government.

A member of the board of directors of the California Science Teachers Association, Turner is also a member of Southern California Edison Co.'s advisory council on education and the Orange County Industry-Education Council. He is a regional consultant for the Biological Sciences Curriculum Study.

Turner is past president of the California Inter-Science Council, a policy-making body for all science teaching organizations in the state. He is also a former director of region IX of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Sessions are held each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at La Casita Building in Palomares Park from 1 to 4 p.m.

The registration fee is $18, payable at the time of registration at Palomares Park Community Center.

Camp activities include arts and crafts, games, lunch, trips and swimming.

Twice as many sent to prison from local court

Criminals this year are being sent to prison from Pomona Superior Court at twice the rate they were for the first six months of last year, according to figures released by Los Angeles County District Attorney John K. Van de Kamp.

By the end of June last year, 73 felons had been ordered imprisoned by Pomona judges. At the end of June this year, that figure had more than doubled at 156, Van de Kamp said.

Prison commitments by judges county-wide were up 20 per cent for the first six months of this year, Van de Kamp said. By the end of June of this year, 324 persons had been ordered to prison for that month alone. So far this year, 1,972 persons have been to prison from county courts.

Aztlan fundraiser planned

The Aztlan Community Services of Ontario will hold a fundraiser Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at 1010 S. Bon View Ave., Ontario.

THE GOLDEN PERIOD FOR WHIPLASH INJURIES

Dr. Harold Fisher of the Ontario Chiropractic Offices issued a strong appeal to accident victims to make them aware of the importance of immediate modern chiropractic examination for whiplash injuries.

Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

In a statement Dr Fisher noted that the first three weeks after a whiplash injury could be called the "golden period of treatment."

"If only individuals would only realize the need for immediate examination and treatment following an accident," says Dr. Fisher. "In the three weeks period following an accident, proper care and treatment of a whiplash injury can often save a person a lifetime of pain and discomfort."

"You must remember," says Dr. Fisher, "that a whiplash injury doesn't always manifest itself until 48 hours or more after an accident. Often a victim is 'stunned' right after an accident and doesn't note any of the whiplash effects. However, after a night's sleep, or even longer, he will usually experience a stiffness or soreness in the neck. This could be considered a positive tip-off of a whiplash injury.

"Of course," says Dr. Fisher, "the whiplash symptoms can be present right away." The most prevalent symptoms are the stiffness and tenderness in the neck, and headaches. There can also be nausea, blackouts, dizziness and visual disturbances. "And," he notes, "in better than 50 per cent of the cases there is low back pain."

What is whiplash and what is it's cause?

"Technically speaking," says Dr. Fisher, "a whiplash neck injury is the involuntary thrust of the head and neck in any direction, and the resulting elastic recoil of the head and neck in the opposite direction, with injury to the surrounding and supporting tissues."

The common causes are auto collision, a sudden jerk of one or both arms, a violent blow in the head or chin, a reflex jerking of the head due to fright or sudden noise, or any kind of a fall that causes forceful movement of the head and neck.

"Incidentally," Dr. Fisher points out, "the research council of the U.S. Air Force has demonstrated that the normal neck can withstand a forward snapping fifty times the force of gravity before producing a major injury, but only a backward snapping of fives times the force of gravity can be tolerated."

It also should be noted that the elasticity of the neck structures decreases with advancing age. "In general," says Dr. Fisher, "the older the victim, the more likelihood of injury and disability through whiplash."

The complications of whiplash injuries are many and varied. Strains, sprains, fractures, nerve injuries, muscle spasms, ruptured disc, nerve root compression, brain and spinal cord injury that stretches into a joint usually threatens the joints with traumatic arthritis," says Dr. Fisher.

"All too frequently an old whiplash injury comes back to haunt a person if he has not received proper care and treatment following the injury," says Dr. Fisher. "When we say there is a 'golden period' after a whiplash we mean just that. It's the one and only 'golden opportunity' for proper care, treatment, and correction."

With regard to treatment of injuries, it should be remembered that more than 700 leading insurance companies recognize chiropractic care as practiced at the Ontario Chiropractic Offices. This includes automobile liability, medical pay and on-the-job injuries covered by workmen's compensation.

Why should you investigate the possibility of a whiplash?

After any accident, or any time you experience a soreness or stiffness in the neck, you should consult the Ontario Chiropractic Offices. The doctors are specialists in structural and spinal disorders and will advise you frankly and sincerely. Should you require additional medical care, they will tell you and cooperate fully with other physicians on your case.

Controlling atomic weapons remains a major problem

EDITOR' NOTE: From Harry S. Truman to Jimmy Carter, every American president has vowed to slow or stop the nuclear arms race. So far, not a single nuclear bomb has been dismantled. And more and more nations are approaching atomic status. Here, in the first of a five-part series, AP diplomatic correspondent Arthur L. Gavshon looks at the efforts for control.

By Arthur L. Gavshon
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 30 years of arguing in nearly 7,000 formal and informal disarmament sessions, the United States and the Soviet Union are taking the first tentative steps to stop the spread of atomic weapons.

A series of interlocking accords, involving many other nations, is the goal.

The effort is still in the talking stages, but there are signs of possible cooperation on major issues: On July 13, for example, the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain resumed talks in Geneva on a treaty banning underground nuclear weapons tests; the Soviets have indicated their willingness to participate in preparations for an international study of nuclear energy.

The aims of the effort include slowing and even ultimately ending the nuclear arms race, curbing exports of tools, knowhow and materials usable in A-bombs and improving nuclear security and safety standards around the world.

The task is as urgent as it is immense. Urgent because nearly a dozen nations are, as President Carter has said, "on the verge" of a weapons-making capacity. Immense because in a world of conflicting strategic, economic and political interests, mountains of suspicion, cynicism, even sneers, have to be overcome.

The 20 to 30 other nations taking part in the search for a way to control the atom know what the price of an American-Soviet failure might be. Failure could spell the end of organized society on this planet, with life hardly bearable — even after only a limited nuclear war between the superpowers.

"The hour is too late for business, for politics, for diplomacy as usual," Carter said last year. "An alliance for survival is needed, transcending regions and ideologies, if we are to assure mankind a safe passage into the 21st century."

The superpowers are working toward six interlocking agreements, with allied, neutral and Communist cooperation in some. Taken together, the prospective accords would form key elements of a new world regime to introduce greater order into all stages of nuclear energy development.

As outlined by top diplomats from the United States and other countries, the six areas of potential U.S.-Soviet cooperation cover:

—Negotiations to limit and maybe cut the nuclear arsenals of the superpowers. U.S. nuclear firepower today exceeds 10,000 megatons, equivalent to 10 billion tons of TNT, officials report. They say the Soviets are not far behind.

—Development of strict new rules for supplier countries to observe when exporting nuclear reactors, equipment, technology and fuels so these cannot be misused for military purposes. A key concern is limiting the production of plutonium, a manmade element which is extracted from spent uranium fuel and which can be used for bomb-making.

—Buildup of a worldwide security network to guard against terrorist attacks on nuclear power plants and the materials that go into them. Hundreds of these plants already are operating or planned throughout the world. Carter has said that by 1990, developing nations alone will have "enough plutonium to build 3,000 Hiroshima-size bombs a year," each with a yield of about 15 kilotons — 15,000 tons of TNT. The U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency has estimated that by 1995 there will be enough weapons-usable fuel in transit outside America to make 20,000 bombs a year.

—Plans to halt all underground nuclear weapons tests, including the detonation of devices for such nonmilitary purposes as diversion of rivers, irrigation works and mining. Right now it is permissible to test-fire warheads and other explosives with yields up to 150 kilotons — 150,000 tons of TNT.

Originally, the renewed Geneva talks on underground tests were billed as exploratory discussions to determine whether conditions were ripe for formal negotiations. But the delegates of Russia and the United States indicated they were aiming for full treaty talks.

"President Carter has set a very high priority on the issue of an agreement to ban all nuclear testing," said Paul Warnke, director of the U.S. Arms Control And Disarmament Agency, as the talks opened. He said the United States hoped the discussions "will move ahead to full negotiations within a reasonably short period of time."

Dr. Igor Morokhov, chief of the Soviet state committee on atomic energy, said: "We are prepared to make every effort to reach that goal" (of a complete and general prohibition of nuclear weapons tests). "Much will depend, of course, on the attitude of our partners in the negotiations."

—An international study, proposed by Carter, of all aspects of nuclear energy control. The focus would be on developing a new generation of reactors using safer fuel than plutonium. (Russia, Japan and U.S. allies in Europe have been developing fast-breeder reactors which would use plutonium as their fuel and would, in 10-year cycles, "breed" double the quantity they consume. Carter opposed construction of a fastbreeder reactor in Oak Ridge, Tenn., but the Senate recently approved $75 million for the facility.) The study would include ideas for setting up international fuel banks, fuel-reprocessing centers and spent-fuel storage locations.

—Methods of beefing up the world nonproliferation treaty signed in 1968 to stop the spread of nuclear weapons. Under that pact, the United States, Russia and Britain as weapons states pledged to cut back their arsenals and share benefits of their technology. In return non-weapons states promised to stay out of the arms league. But the treaty is frail, possessing no binding force, and its acceptance by 104 countries has not denied nonsignatories access to know-how, reactors and supplies. China and France, both weapons states, have not signed it. Nearnuclear countries like South Africa, Spain, Argentina, Brazil, Pakistan and Israel are not parties, nor is India which testfired a nuclear device in 1974.

Carter himself has spoken of a big-power pact to proclaim the Indian Ocean a zone of peace where nuclear weapons should be banned. Russia has agreed to discuss the idea.

Carter's aides see further possibilities of superpower cooperation in the Mideast, for instance, or in the Indian and African subcontinents. Their reasoning is that today's regional rivalries could become tomorrow's warfields providing contenders with an excuse to "go nuclear." By promoting political settlements, White House officials say, the superpowers would help dispel nonnuclear countries' motives for acquiring these weapons.

In a news conference earlier this month, Carter, who studied nuclear physics at the graduate level, indicated he was not discouraged by recent U.S.-Soviet disagreements in some areas. "I believe that it's inherent that tough and public debate will accrue when controversial issues are discussed," he said.

The President said the United States was trying to work out agreements with the Soviets in new areas, including reduction of atomic weapons, demilitarization of the Indian Ocean and a complete ban on nuclear testing.

The picture is not completely bright.

Carter recently urged funding for development of the controversial neutron bomb, which produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb, but less than a 10th as much blast power, heat and fallout. Asked how he reconciled the action with his aim of eliminating nuclear weapons, he said that he had not made any decision on deployment of the bomb and added, "I obviously hope that our continuing inclination toward peace, shared I'm sure by the Soviets and others, will prevent any use of atomic weapons. They are there as a deterrent, however, and the option for their use has to be maintained as one of the viable options."

Carter also has learned he will have to fight long and hard to lead America's allies, let alone the Russians, toward a safer nuclear age. He failed at the London seven-nation summit talks in May to convince all his European and Japanese fellow-leaders to lessen their reliance on plutonium as a fuel for reactors.

West Germany resisted his arguments for canceling its $4.8 billion deal to sell Brazil plant and know-how for plutonium extraction and uranium enrichment. Stung by U.S. criticisms, a German newspaper, Die Welt, said: "It's technological neocolonialism."

France thus far has declined to cancel a contract to supply Pakistan with facilities to turn spent uranium fuel into plutonium.

British experts privately challenge the data-base on which U.S. authorities calculate probable, possible and speculative resources of uranium ore. These fluctuate between 1.8 million and 3.7 million tons.

"If the lower estimate proves correct the U.S. almost surely will have to go for plutonium-fed fast breeders within 10 years, perhaps by launching a crash program of production," one British mining engineer said. "In view of the uncertainty it's a bit hard to expect us to give up our investment in fast-breeder technology and put our money on alternatives yet to emerge."

No allied, neutral or Communist government has yet publicly assailed Carter's central aim, which is to ensure that nuclear weapons know-how does not go beyond the six nations which now have it. They are the United States, Russia, China, Britain, France and India.

Few governments dispute the stark reality behind the rhetoric of the past. One of Carter's top advisers, Dr. Joseph S. Nye, recently warned that no nation would be immune from the perils of a nuclear weapons spread.

"It would adversely affect the ability of our governments to control events," the undersecretary of state for security assistance told fellow scientists during May in Salzburg, Austria. "It would have a dissolvent effect on international relationships and increase the prospects of terrorist nuclear attacks."

In plain terms, Nye was saying the superpower balance would be disturbed and heighten risks that America or Russia could be sucked into regional atomic wars involving their friends.

The U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency recently projected the effects of a Soviet first-strike on U.S. cities, arbitrarily assuming Moscow would drop 1,000 weapons, each with a yield of one megaton or one million tons of TNT.

The agency said:

—In and around local target areas, nearly half the American population would be killed at once. There also would be countless deaths from fires, lack of medical aid, starvation or radiation. Survivors would live for years under the threat of cancer and other terminal diseases or deformities.

—In the rest of the world, with a population of four billion, radiation-induced cancers and genetic damage could kill up to 30 million people over 30 years. The global environment could be changed because of fine dust and particles which would be injected into the stratosphere from torn-up rock, soil and other debris, including buildings. The likely effect would be to reduce sunlight and surface temperatures and increase heat absorption in the upper atmosphere. Plant and animal life would suffer. Crops would fail. Famine might follow.

A U.S. National Academy of Sciences study on the "Longterm Effects of Multiple Nuclear Weapons Detonations" suggested that nuclear blasts might destroy all or part of the ozone layer in the stratosphere.

The ozone layer helps protect life on earth from the sun's ultraviolet radiation. It guards the critical links of the intricate food chain of plants and animals. To shatter that system would possibly imperil life on this planet.

Effects of depletion of the ozone layer were discovered by accident. It happened when public pressures compelled experts to look into consequences of supersonic flights through the stratosphere.

"All we know," said, Dr. Fred C. Ickle, former head of the arms control agency, in discussing the implications of the accidental discovery, "is that we do not know."

Stolen paintings recovered

DALLAS (AP) — Twenty-eight paintings by such artists as Picasso, Monet, Matisse and Goya, valued at an estimated $1.5 million, have been recovered in the office of a Dallas attorney five months after they were stolen, police said.

Suburban Duncanville Police Chief D.H. McElroy and FBI spokesman Lloyd Harrell said the lawyer represents one of three men charged with burglary in the case but they refused to identify him.

Harrell said no charges would be filed against the lawyer because the recovery of the paintings involved attorney-client privilege.

The paintings were stolen Feb. 15 from the Duncanville home of Ben McLemore, who said he was planning to sell them on behalf of a wealthy Mexican merchant, Juan Abusaid of Torreon, Coahuila, Mexico.

Authorities said two Dallas art professors will perform tests on the paintings to make sure they are the stolen artworks.

"There's every indication that the paintings are real," said the FBI's special agent-in-charge Ted Gunderson, "but we're going to be checking the rest of today to know for sure."

Gunderson said that Duncanville officers and FBI agents had made trips to Chicago, Los Angeles and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, in their investigation of the robbery.

"We received the name of a Dallas attorney whom we were told we should contact." Gunderson said. The same day officers spoke with the attorny, Gundrson continued, he told them to come to his office for the paintings.

Bilko still going strong

Phil on rough road back

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — These nights, in Los Angeles, a new generation is laughing at an old television hit. They are rerunning, for probably the 845th time, Phil Silvers' old Bilko series. And the ratings are high.

It's been almost a quarter of a century since Silvers and Bilko first laughed their way across America's collective TV screen. A lot of TV hits have happened in that time, but, somehow, Bilko remains one of the all-time greatest.

For Silvers, whose personality had most to do with Bilko's success, the years have been rough. Marital problems, health problems, financial problems, he's had them all. He's still smiling, but it isn't as spontaneous as it once was.

Mostly, the physical problem has been the toughest to overcome. In 1971, Silvers suffered a stroke. He says, now, that his doctors have told him he was lucky, that his stroke was at the part of the brain that was the least likely to cause major damage.

Still, it incapacitated him for many months, and the residual affects are still there.

"I'm OK now," he says. "But the biggest problem is to convince producers of that. All they remember is that Phil Silvers had a stroke, and that sounds so terrible they are scared to hire me. But I'm OK now.

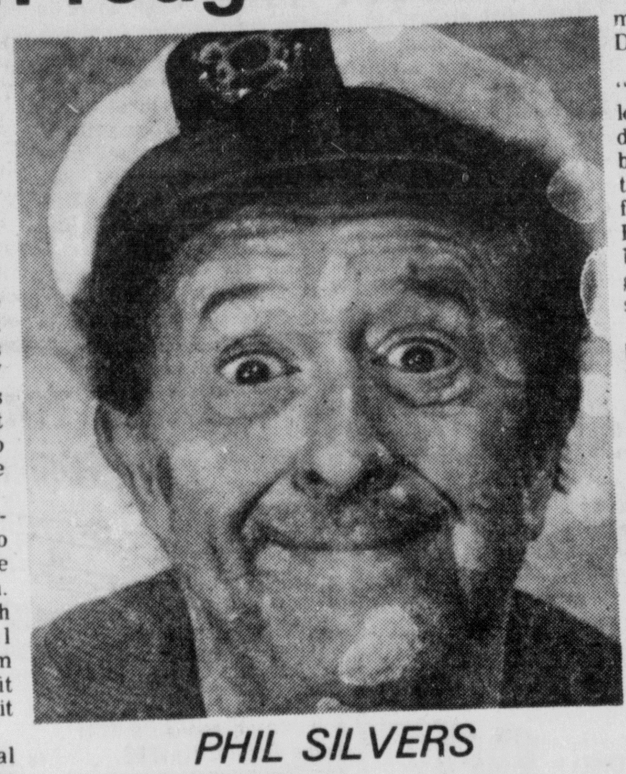

"The only thing that is still troubling me somewhat is my voice. You can hear it, can't you?"

His voice has a slight huskiness to it. Not much, but just a touch.

"That's right. The huskiness. I can't seem to get rid of that. They tell me if I exercised my vocal chords the way I should that would go away, too, but I just haven't done it.

"I did exercise the rest of my body. But, you know me, I do things too much. When I do anything, I go all out. So what happened was I exercised too much and, five months ago, I pulled some muscles. They still hurt."

But there's nothing wrong with his mind, with his style, with the way he delivers a line. Nobody can match Phil Silvers when it comes to timing, to the way his face and his voice work together to punch over a line. And he's beginning to work more and more, as the word gets around that Phil Silvers is back and as good as ever.

PHIL SILVERS

He just finished a movie, a little thing called "Chicken Chronicle." And he's currently shooting another, a big thing called "The Cheap Detective," in which he's part of an all-star cast supporting Peter Falk in Kil Simon's latest bit of tom-dick-and-harry foolery.

He hopes all this leads to his dream — another TV series. He thinks he's ready for one again.

"For a long time," he says, "I didn't want to do another series. I thought I'd had it with that. But now I find I miss it and I'd like to try it again.

One reason, of course, is for the money. Silvers has always lived high. He was one of show business' biggest gamblers for years and freely admits it. In fact, he says he always preferred gambling to show business.

Does he gamble now?

"No," he says. "No more. Not because I've reformed or anything like that. It's just that I don't have the money to gamble now. I'm not making the money I used to make."

Besides gambling, Silvers spent a lot socially. And, along the way, he fathered five daughters who are, currently, at the age when they are the most expensive. The oldest is in college, and the others are fast approaching that state.

So, between one thing and another, he could use the money. He says he got very little for his "Chicken Chronicle" work, but the money on "The Cheap Detective" is good.

"Actually," he says, "producers can be a cruel lot. They think that nowadays I need the work so badly I'll work for very little, so that's what they offer me. But Ray (producer Ray Stark of "The Cheap Detective") is great. He's giving me a very nice salary."

There was a time, however, when Silvers and Stark were not on such good terms. But, Silvers now believes, that was caused by a misunderstanding.

"We did have some words a while ago," the comedian says. "Ray asked me if it was true I was hard to get along with. Well, I really blew up at that, but I think now he was just trying to test me. At the time, though, I got angry. I told him off, and I told him that every picture and every show I was ever on ended up with the whole company loving me.

"But Ray and I are friends now, very good friends. He's been great to me."

Silvers says Stark did something, not only for him but for the whole company, which he feels was special. Shortly before they started shooting, Stark invited everybody in the cast to dinner at Trader Vic's, a Los Angeles restaurant with a Polynesian flavor.

"That's when he gave us all copies of the script," Silvers says. "And we all read our parts and it was very funny, and we all laughed. And you know who laughed the loudest? Neil Simon, that's who."

Chaffey to offer mystery

Chaffey College will present the musical mystery, "Something's Afoot," in the Little Theater at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 4, 5 and 6. Ralph Strane directs.

"Something's Afoot" was put together by James McDonald, David Vos and Rober Gerlach — book, music and lyrics inspired by an Agatha Christy classic with some extra music by Ed Linderman.

Cast members are Paula Papac, Denise Kensinger, Marge Hinrichsen, Mary Young, Jim Broncatello, Micahel Delaney, Jim Arlow, Michael Hargis, Robert Wright and Samuel Nisbett.

Adimssion is $2 for the general public and $1.50 for students and children. Special rates are available for groups and senior citizens. The telephone number to call for additional information is 987-1745, ext. 322.

Musical set at Covina

The Covina Summer Theater will present the Broadway musical hit, "West Side Story," in Dougherty Hall, 437 W. San Bernardino Rd., at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Aug. 2.

Young people from the surrounding Covina area have been cast in this year's production. H.K. Baird of Covina has been directing for Covina Summer Theater since he started it in 1972. This year he will be assisted by musical director Timothy Bullara and choreographer Susan Massey.

"West Side Story" is the musical version of "Romeo and Juliet." The show takes place in Manhattan in the '50s. The American gang, the Jets, and the Puerto Rico gang, the Sharks, are waring with each other and the two lovers, Tony (Reid Wilder) and Maria (Brenda Runyon), are caught in the middle of it all; which brings on a tragic ending.

Handling worry

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I'm sometimes so overwhelmed by worry and anxiety that I can hardly get my work done. I go about my household tasks determined to think about other things, but I can't control my mind. This makes me angry with myself, and that seems to put more strain on me, and my children suffer from my short temper. Does everybody worry and is there any way to handle it? — R.T.

Dear R.T.: I believe almost everyone worries at some time in life. We usually worry more when our minds are freer to let worry and anxiety take over. When great demands are being put upon us, there's really little time to worry.

In times of emergency or crisis, for example, such as the activity involved in escaping a natural disaster, it's been found there is no time for anxiety. Worry always hit after the action.

Psychiatrist Alan Challman feels that worry, or the habit of worry, begins in the cradle. The infant learns to associate suffering and relief. Crying or vocalizing problems hastens relief. When we grow up, we learn more rational ways to deal with our wants and problems, but when we can't think of a better way or when the problem seems beyond our control, we worry. Worry, Dr. Challman feels, is a regression, a self-imposed suffering to evoke a rescue operation.

I've found that action helps me overcome worry. When I begin to worry, I usually don't try to push it aside or ignore it. I acknowledge it, give in to it long enough to sit down and make a few notes to myself. I write down the subject of the worry, possible results, and possible actions that could prevent its happening. Usually, this helps. Of course, there are times when we are powerless. Then, there's nothing to do but admit our powerlessness and try as best we can to turn the matter over to powers outside ourselves.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I'm 28 and have been emotionally involved with a Latin American for the past four months. I was brought up in a different culture. I knew it would be difficult to blend some of our views but I never realized what machismo meant until now. He simply can't see that he's bringing centuries of prejudice down on my head. He doesn't see himself as having prejudice against women. How can I get through to him or is it hopeless? I can't marry him only on his terms. — C.J.

Dear C.J.: This exaggerated masculinity or machismo is a response to a deep sense of fear and inadequacy. According to a Mexican pshchoanalyst, Aniceto Aramoni, the man tries to resist his fears, to defy his depression and apathy by going to the opposite extreme. He hopes to transcend his fear of aloneness and weakness by acting bigger, stronger, and braver.

Overcompensating for his acute inner feelings of inadequacy and guilt, some men strut through life seeking challenges to prove their masculinity.

The fact that your friend felt strong enough to risk being attracted and becoming emotionally involved with you indicates that the situation is far from hopeless. Explain you that you can't live on his terms if they involve treating you as an object, as an inferior who must serve him. Let him know he doesn't have to prove his masculinity. You may get through to him. If you don't, you may have to break off your relationship.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, mirroring investor uncertainty about the economy's outlook, headed sharply lower Tuesday. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which suffered its worst loss in two months Monday by plunging 9.18 points, was down 7.10 points to 907.14 shortly before noon EDT.

Much of the setback was attributed to profit taking in the wake of the Dow's 20-point advance in the previous six sessions before Monday. In addition, institutions continued to sell basic industry stocks represented in the Dow average, anticipating an economic slow down later this year.

Declines far outnumbered advances, 820 to 344, among the 1,670 issues crossing the tape. The 506 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 9,700,000, compared with 8,140,000 traded during the same period Monday, the slowest session in two weeks.

Exxon, which fell 2⅛ on the NYSE Monday (it lost 1½ in composite trading), was the most active Big Board issue, off 1⅛ to 51⅝. Investors were disappointed by the oil giant's lower second quarter earnings.

GeorgiaPacific was the second most active issue, off ⅜ to 29⅛. American Electric Power was third, unchanged at 25⅜.

Oil-well machinery, drilling and service issues were under pressure. A major broker has recommended selling the group's stocks. Halliburton and Santa Fe International were off a point apiece, Hughes Tool ⅞, SEDCO ¾, Baker International ⅝ and Schlumberger ½.

Polaroid was ahead 1 after the firm raised its dividend payout to 20 cents a share from 12½ cents.

Schering-Plough, which fell 1½ Monday, was off another 1. Although the firm Monday reported higher earnings, the net was below what investors had anticipated.

Prices were lower in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Reliance Group warrants led the Amex actives, unchanged 1¼. Houston Oil & Minerals followed, off ½ to 37⅛. McCulloch Oil was third, unchanged at 3¾.

Tourism in U.S. picking up despite slow start this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tourism in the United States got off to a slow start this year, but experts say it now appears Americans will do more traveling than they did during the 1976 bicentennial year.

"It looks good," were the identical comments of spokesmen for both the U.S. Travel Data Center and the American Automobile Association.

"People have money, the economy is doing well, incomes are up, people are just in a good mood — they're spending money," said Steven L. Muha, senior research analyst for the travel center.

For the last two years, he said, people bought durables like cars and refrigerators and now they're spending money on travel.

John H. Jennrich of AAA said, "Our prediction is that tourism will be up this summer. We see ample supplies of gasoline. For most people the economy is pretty good — it could be better, but people are buying new cars, people are taking trips."

The travel data center estimated 109 million Americans traveled for pleasure last year.

The National Park Service predicts an increase of about 4.5 per cent over 1976 in visits to its system, which includes not only the 37 national parks but seashore and wilderness areas and places such as the memorials in Washington.

The full picture on tourism won't be known for months because pleasure travel hits its peak in July and August. The most popular period at national parks is from mid-June to Labor Day.

Available statistics show a slow beginning at the first of the year, when the weather was unusually bad, then a pickup.

The data center, a private research organization, which does work for the federal government under contract, checks attendance at the major tourist attractions of the country every two weeks. These include places such as Disney World in Florida, Disneyland in California, Greenfield Village, Mich., Six Flags Over Texas and Colonial Williamsburg, Va.

For the first six months of this year, visitation at the sites was about even with 1976, Muha said. But for the two weeks ending July 4, visits were up almost 12 per cent over last year, he said.

And the data center's statistics for the first four months of this year show domestic air passenger miles up 6 per cent over 1976, bus passenger miles up 6 per cent and Amtrak train miles up 3 per cent.

AAA counts requests from members for maps for designated travel routes. For the first quarter of 1977 the figures showed that the number of trips was down by eight-tenths of 1 per cent from the same period in 1976.

But preliminary figures for the second quarter show an increase of 5.9 per cent for the same period in 1976, Jennrich said.

The National Park Service said there were 267.8 million visits to the 294 areas in its system in 1976 and it expects 280 million this year.

"We have run a consistent pattern of an annual increase of 5 to 7 per cent," said Duncan Morrow of the park service.

Texan mayor asks for 180 'welfare loafers'

HONDO, Tex. (AP) — Ever since the mayor of Hondo sent out a request for 180 welfare - collecting loafers, the small South Central Texas town's post office has been choked with letters. But President Carter is not among the mayor's pen pals.

"I guess we got about 600 or 700 letters. They came from all 50 states and Canada. We have volunteers from as far as Germany," says Mayor Woodrow Glasscock.

It's a problem difficult to imagine if there were no bureaucracy.

The way town officials tell it, it began when this town of 6,000 decided to build a million dollar civic center and to seek federal funds — only to be turned down because their three per cent unemployment rate is below the minimum out-of-work rate required under that program.

To officials here, that sounded as if Hondo were being penalized because it had too many hard-working citizens.

So, a few weeks ago, Mayor Glasscock wrote to President Carter and asked for a list of hard-core unemployed people who could move to Hondo to help boost the unemployment rate.

"I wrote a second letter when I found out they weren't going to answer the first one. I get a reply from some under-secretary's assistant secretary," Glasscock said.

"They said they were on some mandate from Congress and they can't legally give us any funds."

Punter asks to be near sick parents

By Associated Press

The sports world of the sixties and seventies expanded into the realm of briefcases and big business, but lest we forget, the games are still played by human beings, the kind of animal that laughs when he's happy and cries when he's sad.

Pro football players, perhaps because their emotions are hidden by helmets and their bodies shielded by plastic and cushions, are sometimes pictured as violent creatures, devoid of human feelings.

That, of course, isn't the case, and if anyone needs confirmation that the image won't wash, he should listen to Jerrel Wilson, adopted son of Nan and Douglas Wilson and veteran punter for the Kansas City Chiefs.

Wilson wants out from the National Football League team that he served so well for 14 seasons, not because he wants more money or better hours, but because he wants to be near his ailing parents.

"For 20 years they gave me the most wonderful life I could have ever hoped to imagine," said Wilson, who wants to be traded to Houston, a soft punt away from his parents' ranch near Huntsville, Tex. "They weren't rich by any means, but they always made sure I got to practice, had football shoes and I had everything I wanted.

"I owe them everything and it's because of them that I'm in football now.

"The thing is that they are both so close to each other that I'm afraid that if one of them goes the other will follow shortly thereafter. They are not old people, but very sick."

Nan Wilson underwent cancer surgery last winter and a few days later Douglas Wilson suffered a heart attack.

"If one of them goes, then I'm gone (to Texas)," the 36-year-old punter said. "I've got to go and Coach (Paul) Wiggin is fully aware and fully understanding and willing."

Wiggin, a strong, sensitive man, is in the middle of a difficult situation. He, too, feels family comes ahead of first downs. "I told (owner) Lamar Hunt when he hired me that if my wife or children were in the hospital, the Super Bowl wouldn't mean very much to me."

But Wiggin says he also has a responsibility as the coach of the Chiefs. "Jerrel knows this job is a fight for survival for me," he said.

"I feel very strongly for Jerrel," Wiggin said by phone from the Chiefs' training camp in Kansas City. "I want what's right for him. If it's possible for this thing to be worked out, then we'll do it. But we have to cover ourselves.

"We don't have a very good defense so field position is very critical for us. A good punter (Wilson is one of the best in the NFL) is an important cog in our team."

Bum Phillips, coach of the Houston Oilers, says he would love to have Wilson. The Oilers have been hurt because quarterback Dan Pastorini has doubled as the team's punter. He averaged 36.7 yards last season, compared to Wilson's career mark of 43.9.

"I would like to help him," Phillips said by phone from the Houston training camp. "I offered what we thought we could offer. They didn't accept what we offered. We need a punter, but you can't give up too much. If you do, you end up using the punter too often.

"I'd like to make a deal for Jerrel's family's sake, but I've got to think of my team."

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the NFL, has served as a catalyst in simililar situations before. There is precedent for him to get the ball moving now.

Walter Rock, a tackle for San Francisco, needed to be near the Washington area to help out with the family garage door business in Virginia since his father-in-law had passed away. Rozelle helped Rock get to Washington for the 1968 season in return for a high draft choice.

"There have been cases where Pete has helped work out a deal to accommodate the player," an NFL spokesman said Monday. "Pete would be willing to talk to both sides in this case."

Both sides say they would welcome the assistance, and a respected, impartial voice might be needed to resolve this human problem in the team-oriented world of pro football.

"I know what it all means," said Wiggin. "If I ever get to the point where I can't see the human part of this game, I'm getting out."

Ex-Poly players try to stick with Rams

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Tuesday, July 26, 1977

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

FULLERTON — There's no question that the element of luck enters into any sporting activity.

Luck sometimes seems very important in a game situation — a sudden rainstorm can rescue a pitcher who's losing his stuff or the bounce of a punted ball can give a football team field position at the one-yard line instead of the 20 — but those breaks tend to even out over the course of a season.

Off the field, luck may play an important part in an athlete's career — and those breaks don't always average themselves out over a period of time.

In the case of a pair of ex-Cal Poly football players now trying to make it with the Los Angeles Rams, good fortune so far seems to be visiting one and ignoring the other.

Doug Fowler and Ben Merchant, both starters for the Broncos last year, are two of more than 90 athletes at the Rams camp at Cal State Fullerton.

Fowler, a 6-foot-5, 260-pound offensive tackle, is trying to break in at a position where the Rams already appear to have enough established veterans. Merchant, a 6-3, 228-pound linebacker, plays a position where the Rams seem a little thin right now.

In addition, Fowler was injured during his third day at the camp, and his participation in practices is now on a day-to-day basis.

"It's a hyperextended elbow," he said. "It's the funny bone nerve that's injured and sometimes my whole hand feels numb."

After reporting Sunday, July 17, Fowler injured the elbow Tuesday, just two days later. He kept practicing through Thursday but has not been able to since.

"It's really a disappointment," said Fowler, who prepped at Glendora High. "I've wanted this opportunity since I was in grade school — in fact some of the players here are guys I watched play when I was in grade school. But after a couple of days of practice, after I got used to the idea that I was trying out with the Rams, I realized that I could do all right here — that it's really not so tough. In fact, practices here aren't as tough as they were at Cal Poly."

So it's frustrating for Fowler not to be able to show the Ram staff what he can do. But he realizes that, even if he were healthy, his making it through the final cuts would be a longshot.

"They generally carry three offensive guards on the roster," Fowler said, "and they've got three veterans at the position. They've got two returning starters (Doug France and John Williams) and a returning swingman (Jackie Slater), who fills in for either of the starters.

"Those guys all have years of experience and there's no substitute for that.

"But I've still got a shot — as long as I get healthy and all the right things happen."

Merchant, on the other hand, feels his chances of making the final squad are excellent.

"They told me they'd try to carry seven linebackers," said Merchant, who reported Friday.

"I was on my way to the Oakland camp," said Merchant, "but I thought the situation sounded better here. My representative, Kermit Alexander, arranged for me to sign a free agent contract." Fowler's trial with the Rams was arranged largely through the efforts of former Cal Poly coach Andy Vinci.

Baylor helps Ryan win his 14th

SEATTLE (AP) — Nolan Ryan has become the first 14-game winner in the major leagues, pitching the California Angels to a 7-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

"I don't like pitching here," Ryan said. "The power alleys are too short.

He also called the Mariners "the best expansion club I've seen since I've been in the major leagues."

Ryan struck out 10 and scattered five hits Monday night. He now has fanned 10 batters or more in a game on 99 occasions.

Sharing the limelight was teammate Don Baylor, who clubbed his 11th and 12th homers of the season and batted in six runs as the Angels wrapped up a three-game sweep of Seattle to take the season series, 9-6.

Former Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson, now a California coach, has been working with Baylor each day to try to help him snap out of an early season slump.

While Baylor won't have any more chances against Seattle — a team he has gone 10 for 21 against in the past six games — Robinson said he is making progress.

"If I get him up to .230, they're going to put my name on my locker," kidded Robinson. Baylor actually is close to .240.

"He's willing to listen, to try the things I suggest and stick with them," Robinson said. "This is the first time he's really stung the ball. That's a good sign."

Robinson said Baylor has made several minor changes, such as dropping his hands, moving closer to the plate, keeping his weight back and not jumping at the ball.

Baylor's three-run homer off Seattle reliever Enrique Romo in the seventh inning came after Bobby Bonds had doubled home Rance Mulliniks, who like Baylor had three hits.

All together California collected 13 hits, seven of them for extra bases off Mariner starter Dick Pole, 6-7, and Romo.

Baylor chased Pole with a two-run shot in the sixth, erasing a 2-1 Seattle lead on the strength of Dave Collins' sacrifice fly and Dan Meyer's 13th homer in the third.

The Angels had drawn first blood when Mulliniks tripled and came home on Baylor's two-out single in the top of the third.

Dodger hitters remain in slump

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Craig Swan said he had nothing but a fast ball, but it was enough to keep the Los Angeles Dodgers from getting anything at all.

"I didn't have a slider and I didn't have a curve ball," the New York Mets' pitcher said Monday after pitching a three-hitter in the Mets' 1-0 victory.

The Mets bunched four first inning hits for the only run that Swan needed to even his record at 6-6. Steve Henderson's RBI double followed a pair of singles.

"Without a doubt that was his best job of the year," said New York Manager Joe Torre. "He pitched out of situations and he seemed to have control of himself throughout the game."

Swan did not allow a hit after the third inning when he overcame his only trouble. With two out, the Dodgers had the bases loaded on two singles and a walk. But Swan got Ron Cey to fly out and was in command the rest of the way.

"It was easily my most satisfying win ever," said Swan, a product of nearby Long Beach. "It seems I was wild enough to be effective. I walked five, which is a lot for me, but it seems they couldn't dig in on me."

Swan said the fact the Mets traded away the Mets Tom Seaver added no pressure whatsoever.

"I'm not pitching anymore than I was before," he said. "I'm still pitching every eight or nine days. I certainly miss Tom however, since he was a team leader.

Doug Rau, 11-2, took the loss, which snapped his winning streak at six games. The left-hander gave up seven hits in seven innngs, three of them in the first innning when New York scored its only run.

Lenny Randle and Felix Millan singled to lead off the game. Henderson, who came to the Mets from Cinncinatti in the Seaver deal, then dropped a double to right field and Randle scored.

DODGER DATA — The high-flying Philadelphia Phillies come into Dodger Stadium this evening for a four-game series to conclude the homestand.

The Dodgers and Phils play a twinight doubleheader this evening beginning at 4:30 p.m. with Rick Rhoden (10-7) and Burt Hooton (8-4) facing Jim Lonborg (4-3) and Steve Carlton (13-5).

After a 7:30 p.m. contest Wednesday, the series closes with an 1 p.m. luncheon special on Thursday

Racing switches to Del Mar

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Racing interest in Southern California switched to Del Mar, 100 miles south of here today, with Today 'n Tomorrow, newly-crowned as the 36th winner of the $171,700 Sunset Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Del Mar opens its summerfall meeting Wednesday.

It was a dual triumph for outsider Today n' Tomorrow and jockey Bill Shoemaker in the Sunset, as well as the owner-breeder, Mrs. Connie Ring, the grand lady of California thoroughbred racing.

It was the ninth victory for the Shoe in the history of the 1½-mile grass marathon. It was also his 705th stakes win, his 125th in a hundred grander and after three trips to the winner's circle Monday, his lifetime total is 7,256. The time was 2:27 3-5, which did not endanger the course or stakes record.

Shoemaker hustled Today 'n Tomorrow in 1¼ lengths ahead of the dangerous stakes winner, Hunza Dancer. A length back was another longshot, Copper Mel.

Vigors ran fourth, the favorite, Caucasus, faded to seventh and Anne's Pretender was 10th. Each fallen candidate, including Hunza Dancer, was a $100,000 race winner this year.

Today 'n Tomorrow, winner of the Inglewood Handicap in spring, carried 116 and paid $22.60 for a $2 win ticket. Hunza Dancer, 122, with Triple Crown rider Jean Cruguet aboard, paid $5.40 for the place and Copper Mel, 117, Laffit Pincay up, returned $10 for show.

With the win, Mrs. Ring, an elderly matron from Beaumont, Calif. for the season won $469,285. Most of it came from the winnings of her Hollywood Gold Cup winner, Crystal Water. The Sunset brought in $104,550.

"My horse was strong at the finish. When you run the last quarter in :24 flat, it makes it kind of tough for the others to catch up, doesn't it?" Shoemaker asked.

Average daily attendance at Hollywood Park this past season was 28,222. Total attendance for the season was 2,144,862.

Simpson frustrated in Buffalo

By The Associated Press

O.J. Simpson may not be looking forward to another winter in Buffalo, but Chuck Fairbanks is ready for another in Foxboro, Mass....and another, and another....

Fairbanks had three years remaining on his original eight-year contract with the New England Patriots and signed a new long-term contract with the National Football League team Monday.

Club President William H. Sullivan announced the agreement Monday, saying the contract calls for a pay raise and retains Fairbanks as general manager. No other details were announced.

"I haven't got my New England accent down yet, but if I stick around longer, maybe I'll get it down," said Fairbanks.

The 44-year-old Fairbanks joined the Patriots in 1973 after six seasons at the University of Oklahoma. He has piloted New England to a four-year record of 36-30. Last season the club had its best record ever, 11-3, and advanced to the playoffs for the first time in 13 years.

In Buffalo, meanwhile, Simpson made it clear to the Bills that he is upset over the team's trade of center Mike Montler and the inability of the club to strengthen itself.

"It's frustrating. There's no straighter way to say it. I've always worked hard and always played hard. But you can only do so much," Simpson said.

"We're rebuilding all over again. If we still had Earl Edwards, Pat Toomay, Ahmad Rashad, J.D. Hill and Mike Montler, I think we'd be a caliber team," said Simpson.

The Bills continued housecleaning by placing former All-Pro cornerback Robert James on waivers at his request.

James, who missed the past two seasons, failed the team physical this season. Meanwhile, Buffalo announced that offensive tackle Donnie Green, who lost his starting job to Joe Devlin late last year, had walked out of training camp for unknown reasons.

Cincinnati Bengals Coach Bill Johnson said two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin would see more action this season.

"Maybe we made a mistake the first half of the season. Had he played the entire season, I'm sure he would have gained 1,000 yards," said Johnson, referring to the celebrated running back.

Griffin, the former Ohio State star, gained 625 yards as a part-time performer and turned in a 77-yard touchdown run against Kansas City, the longest of the season in the American Football Conference.

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram announced he was not going to trade his next No. 1 draft choice—not even to get an All-Pro defensive back

Stram said he wouldn't swap a first-round draft choice for Mel Blount, the Pittsburgh star who has filed a $5 million slander suit against Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll.

Blount claims he was damaged by court testimony in which Noll said Blount sometimes could be considered part of the "criminal element" of the NFL.

"I'm sure a player of his caliber would be worth a second-round draft pick," Stram said. "But I wouldn't be too suprised if Blount winds up with the Steelers despite all that's happened."

In Washington, Redskins Coach George Allen announced that running back Mike Thomas and wide receiver Frank Grant will be fined the maximum $500 per day for missing training camp.

The fines are part of Allen's "get tough" approach with holdouts.

"We need them both and they want to be Redskins," Allen said, "but if this type of thing lingers on and on then I'll have to deliberate what course to take."

In a similiar situation in 1972, when return specialist Speedy Duncan held out, Allen quickly acquired Alvin Haymond, another kick returner

But no money appropriated for project

Pomona Mall destruction plan OK'd

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

A plan to tear out the Pomona Mall between Garey Avenue and Locust Street was approved by the Pomona City Council in concept Monday night, but the council appropriated no money for the project.

Alternatives on how to finance the project, which would include the building of a fully developed street to replace the one-block section of the mall, is expected to occur in two weeks.

The project is being backed by the property owners on the 100 block of the East Pomona Mall and the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Not all store owners on the entire mall are so enthused about the project, however.

One, John P. Evans, questioned the legality of the project in a letter to the council. He urged that if the project is approved, every effort should be made to save the tree planters and art works on that section of the mall.

Several citizens also questioned the city's financial participation in the project.

J. Romo said public street funds are more badly needed in other sections of the city rather than providing "easy access to the chamber of commerce parking lot."

Ed Harrison, noting the chamber of commerce had purchased its own building nearby and was having another one at Garey Avenue and the mall torn down, questioned whether the chamber of commerce needs any help at all.

"Why are we giving them $35,000 per year? Do they need it? Apparently not," said Harrison.

The buildings referred to by Harrison are the former Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association building on Garey Avenue south of the mall and the old Owl Drug Store building at the corner of Garey and the mall.

Remodling is already well under way on the PFF building, which will serve as the chamber's headquarters, and the other building will soon be demolished and replaced by a parking lot.

Councilman Stanton Selby hailed the proposal to tear out the one block of the mall as "a step forward we've needed for a long time."

Councilman Adrian Wright urged that special efforts be made to construct more than just an ordinary street in place of the mall. He even suggested that the project extend for a second block east of Garey.

Cost of street construction was not firmly established although Mayor Charles Bader said he understood it would take at least $85,000.

In addition to opening the mall to traffic, the project would necessitate reopening Locust Street across the mall and the removal of some artworks donated by Millard Sheets, designer of the mall, that now stand there.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said that trees and artworks would be preserved and moved to other locations if possible.

Additional $700,000 for school programs approved in Pomona

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona school board Monday night set the stage for a funding showdown at Wednesday's special meeting when a three-member board approved an additional $700,000 for new programs in the district next year.

The need for that money became known when the district business department presented a $900,000 error in its budget planning three weeks ago between the time the board was presented a tentative budget to the time of the approval of the publication budget. That money — still not completely accounted for — had previously been designated for funding new programs in the district next year.

Now, following the discovery of the business department error by trustee Eugene Whitlock, additional monies were needed for new programs. Whitlock moved Monday evening the $700,000 be appropriated from next year's reserves, reducing those reserves to approximately $2.5 million.

"I wouldn't have made the motion," said Whitlock, "if I didn't think we weren't going to get that additional money from Sacramento this year."

District Supt. Charles Carpenter, who had earlier asked the board for a lowering of the district's reserve fund, said he could easily live with Whitlock's motion.

However, many were surprised when the board adjourned its meeting under the gavel of Vice President Frances Livingston rather than continue with the business of appropriating funds for new programs next year. This apparently will be done on Wednesday when board President Don Donnelly is able to attend. Donnelly was absent Monday because of work commitments. Trustee C. Allen Braswell is on vacation.

The three members forming Monday's quorum, Mrs. Livingston, Whitlock and C. J. Mendoza, had earlier voted unanimously to approve the following:

—To hire a new architect to supervise the planning and building of a new warehouse and shop as well as the conversion of the gymnasium, all at the district Education Center and to develop plans for the expansion and modifications at Westmont and Hamilton schools respectively. Mendoza requested the superintendent present the board with more than two architects so the board could interview and select one from the recommended list.

—To purchase two large new or used commercial buses, two 15 to 20-passenger buses and an eight to 10-passenger van at a cost not to exceed $120,500.

—To establish a computer fund at the beginning amount of $500,000 to be used either to pay increased costs to the Claremont computer consortium or to finance the first phase of the district's own data processing center's development.

—To hire on a month-to-month basis a technical analyst to act as a consultant in the development of the district's priorities for planning, building and capital improvement for a fee of approximately $1,500 per month. This position had earlier been referred to as an analyst who would develop information for the district's impending bond election. Bonds, however, were never mentioned Monday night until Del Pfeifer, executive director of the Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) rose to question the need for a staff member to handle the district's bond election. At that time, the analyst's duties were more fully explained. Following the meeting, Carpenter said the analyst's duties would be above and beyond the scope of the district's public information officer.

The board also voted unanimously to set the adult school tax rate at 11 cents, allowing some $260,000 from local property taxes to fund the school in 1977-78. The balance of the $2.3 million adult school budget will come from average daily attendance and state aid.

'Public officials getting paranoid' — Mayfield

S.B. supervisors fail to approve own pay raise

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Are San Bernardino County supervisors becoming "paranoid" over the prospect of voting themselves a pay hike?

Supervisor James Mayfield made that charge Monday after the board failed on a 2-2 tie vote, to grant itself a 13.3 per cent salary raise for 1977-78.

"This is an indication of how public officials are getting so paranoid over their salaries," said Mayfield. "We're afraid to move . . . but we should be more mature."

Mayfield and Joe Kamansky voted in favor of the raise suggested by the county Grand Jury, but board Chairman Robert Townsend of Chino and Supervisor Dennis Hansberger opposed it. Supervisor Robert Hammock was absent.

The issue will be placed on next Monday's agenda, however. Supervisors ordered county Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin to bring back an ordinance "along the lines of the Grand Jury recommendation."

The Jury had recommended "at least" an 8 per cent boost in the board's "base salary" plus an additional cost of living raise. The base increase would bring supervisors' salaries to $24,844.

The cost of living raise suggested by Goodwin is 5.3 per cent. He based that on an average raise given in five other counties — San Diego, Riverside, Kern, Orange and Ventura.

Supervisors now receive $22,692 annually, and each member gets $300 a year in extra pay for special duties.

Although the Grand Jury said supervisors were underpaid and should receive between $25,000 and $35,000, Goodwin's suggestion was to adopt the minimum Grand Jury recommendation — 8 per cent plus a cost of living boost.

The salary issue has been controversial and heated since board members voted themselves a 39.6 per cent raise last year. They were later forced to rescind it after citizens angrily protested the increase.

The board's large salary hike sparked recall efforts against Supervisor Daniel Mikesell of Ontario, who later resigned.

Monday's tussle between Mayfield and other board members became quite heated at times. Mayfield said the board should approve the minimum increase the Grand Jury recommended, but Hansberger and Townsend were in no rush to adopt the "cost of living" part of the raise.

Mayfield supported the Grand Jury proposal because it represented a "third party" making the suggestions. He noted if the Grand Jury recommendation had been available last year, "We might not have incurred the wrath of taxpayers."

But Hansberger, who has been at odds with Mayfield on numerous issues in the past, said he disagreed with the concept of a 5.3 per cent cost of living boost on top of the 8 per cent raise in the base pay.

Hansberger said actual raises given in other counties won't be known until August for the 1977-78 fiscal year. "This (5.3 per cent) anticipates what other counties will do."

He added that comparing San Bernardino County with other counties was not necessarily comparing "apples with apples." And if supervisors achieve parity with other counties through an 8 per cent raise, the 5.3 per cent boost would mean the board would be ahead of the others, Hansberger noted.

Mayfield's motion to approve both parts of the salary raise (totalling 13.3 per cent) was defeated, 2-2, when Townsend agreed with Hansberger's concerns. "I agree with the base raise but the cost of living should be a separate item."

After his move was defeated, Mayfield exploded in anger. "You're voyaging into territory that would be suspect. The Grand Jury recommended this — what else do you have in mind? The Grand Jury said to deal with cost of living."

Mayfield noted he was "surprised by the eleventh hour move by some board members to develop a new scheme."

Kamansky said he saw nothing wrong with the Grand Jury's proposals and noted when there were "problems" over the raise last year, "We asked the Grand Jury to investigate this."

He acknowledged that board members were "worried" about raising their salaries.

Townsend said he "didn't know how to take" Mayfield's comment, that supervisors should be more mature in the matter. Mayfield answered that Townsend should take it "just the way I meant it."

Ontario man faces murder charges

By TONY AULT

A West Valley Superior Court judge has ordered an Ontario man to stand trial on murder charges, overruling a Municipal Court judge's decision to the contrary, and set Aug. 8 as the date for a pre-trial hearing.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth Ziebarth ruled Friday that defendant Leonard Jenkins, 27, Ontario, could stand trial on murder charges stemming from the May 31 death of Thomas Peters, 37, Ontario.

In a preliminary hearing on the matter, Municipal Court Judge David Merriam held that because of circumstances surrounding Peter's death, Jenkins could not be held for trial on the murder charge.

Peters died of complications from pneumonia after undergoing nearly two month's treatment for severe head injuries suffered in an altercation in Ontario April 4.

He was admitted to the hospital with skull fractures and remained comatose until he contracted blood poisoning, a complication of pneumonia, doctors said.

The case was complicated by the fact that because of Peters' grave condition, treatment of the pneumonia was withheld and the blood poisoning set in.

The defense, led by Deputy Public Defender Harvey Schiffman, argued that the decision to withhold treatment of the pneumonia was the cause of death and not the injuries Peters initially sustained.

Judge Ziebarth overruled Merriam after the prosecution argued that Peters' death was the actual result of the injuries.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert Lemkau pointed out that Peters would not have been in the hospital to contract the pneumonia and blood poisoning had he not been severely injured.

Judge Ziebarth admitted that the defense may have reason to seek appeal and Schiffman said he would petition the state Court of Appeals for a review of the decision and asked for a stay of the defendant's jury trial.

The result of the appeal may be known before the end of the week.

Jenkins was arrested by Ontario police investigating the fight which took place near an Ontario bar. The initial complaint filed by the West Valley deputy district attorney's office alleged assault with a deadly weapon.

Following Peters' death, the complaint was amended to the murder charge.

Citrus College board approves school budget

Citrus College trustees have approved the school's 1977-78 publication budget of $11,409,906 but have not released figures of the anticipated tax rate.

The 1976-77 tax rate was 59 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Although this tax rate represented a reduction in the rate for the fourth consecutive year, a spokesman for the college said a decline is not anticipated for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

"It may even go up a few cents. But we won't know until after the Aug. 2 public hearing and final adoption," he added.

The budget represents a slight increase of $586,655 over last year's publication budget to cover the increased costs of utilities, health and welfare benefits, upgrading of state and federal programs and cost of living salary adjustments.

Representatives of the Citrus College Faculty Association and the board of trustees signed the teachers contract for the 1977-78 school year. Certificated personnel were granted a 6 per cent cost of living increase and an additional one-half per cent for increased cost of health insurance.

The board granted management a 4 per cent cost of living increase plus one-half per cent to cover increased health insurance premiums during July to January. The trustees had

Nine San Bernardino County officials granted salary hikes

Nine top San Bernardino County officials were granted salary raises Monday by the county Board of Supervisors.

The board also granted salary boosts amounting to 15 per cent over the next two years to 100 management employes in the sheriff's and marshal's offices.

Raises for the nine department heads averaged $1,820 annually.

Those officials and their new salaries include: county assessor, $35,140; auditor-controller, $35,571; district attorney, $45,099; sheriff, $38,267; treasurer-tax collector, $32,139; public administrator-coroner, $34,880; and clerk-recorder, $33,225.

Supervisors approved a memorandum of understanding with the safety management and supervisory unit, which allows the 15 per cent increase to be phased in over a two-year period.

The raises for sergeants, captains and lieutenants in the sheriff's and marshal's departments will permit a 5 per cent boost, retroactive to July 2; a 2½ per cent increase on July 1, 1978; 2½ per cent in October, 1978; and another 5 per cent by the end of 1979.

Fringe benefit allotments per employe will be raised from $35 to $50 this month, and to $70 on July 1, 1978.

A $200 merit incentive pay will also be established this year but eliminated in 1978, according to county officials.

The raises and other benefits were negotiated with the county by the Sheriff's Employes' Benefit Association. Other workers, including miscellaneous employes, have yet to receive raises.

Cost of the safety employes' raises to the county will be $300,000.

The gun bureaucracy

Tom Gibson is a middle-aged, middle-income small businessman whose recent experience with the federal bureaucracy vividly demonstrates why so many citizens have come to distrust their national government.

A 52-year-old veteran of World War II, Gibson operates a shoe repair and retail shoe store in National City, just south of San Diego. "I've never been arrested and never been cited for anything more serious than a parking violation," he says.

Several years ago, Gibson was given a "handy gun," a long-barrelled pistol which fires a single shotgun shell. "This gun was a keepsake, given to me by the family of a very dear friend — a man who was like a father to me," Gibson explains.

To determine if the weapon had to be registered, Gibson early this year telephoned the San Diego office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), the Treasury Department agency in charge of implementing federal gun laws.

At the request of the ATF, Gibson carried the gun to the nearby field office, where an ATF agent checked registration records, "then advised me that the gun had not been registered and told me I could not have it back."

Recalling that unexpected confiscation of his property, Gibson says: "I feel very deeply that I have been wronged. I respect the government and its laws but feel that the firearms official obtained this keepsake, which I treasured, by a ruse."

Gibson ran afoul of the Gun Control Act of 1968, a meritorious statute designed to strictly control traffic in machine guns, automatic rifles, silencers, sawed-off shotguns, explosives and sundry other lethal weapons.

The purchase or possession of those items is not prohibited, except on the part of convicted criminals, but weapons manufactured after passage of the law must be serially numbered and registered as they move from the manufacturer onto the marketplace and eventually to purchasers.

For weapons produced prior to enactment of the law, there was a one-month "amnesty period" in late 1968 during which gun owners could register their weapons and make possession legal.

The law also authorized ATF to designate other "amnesty periods" of up to 90 days, but in the ensuing nine years there have been none and there are no plans for any in the future because of what an agency official describes only as "administrative considerations."

In other words, a law-abiding citizen who wants to keep as a memento or souvenir an unregistered, pre 1968 weapon has only two, equally unpalatable choices: Hide it and risk criminal conviction or allow ATF to confiscate it.

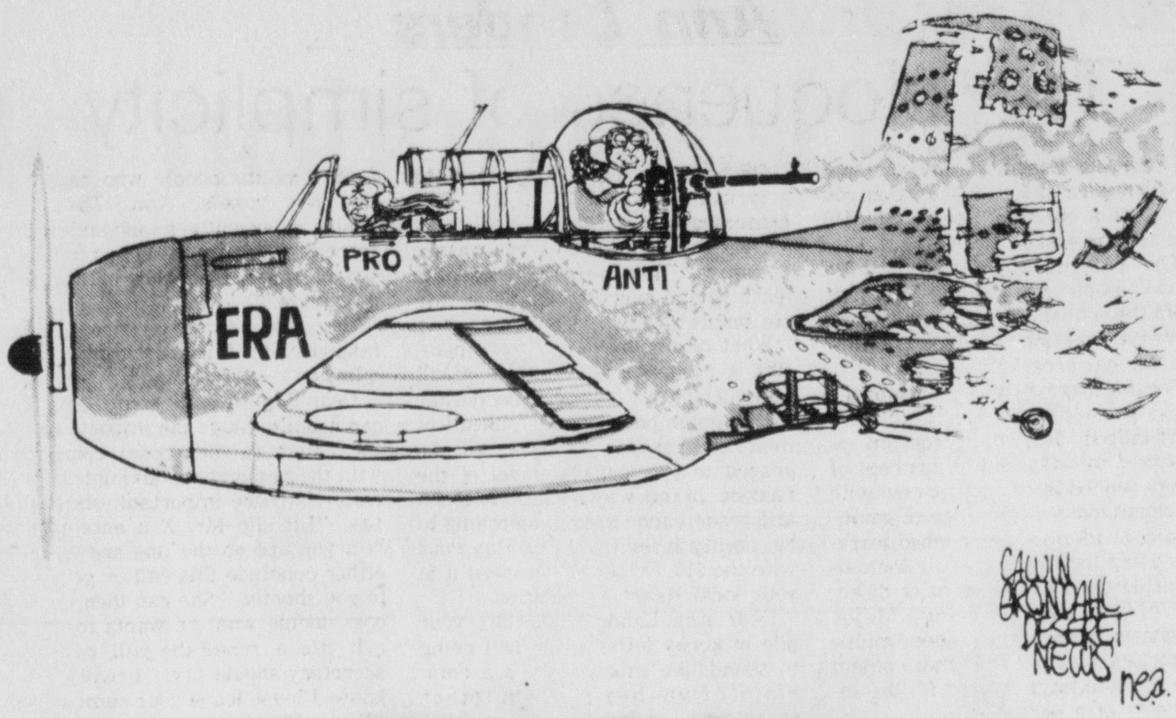

"For the first time in my life, I am asking for help," Gibson said in a letter to Sen. Alan Cranston. Cranston then elicited from AFT Director Rex D. Davis the admission that "there are numerous instances similar to Mr. Gibson's."

An ATF spokesman also acknowledges that "it happens quite frequently." But when asked if the agency has ever sought the slight modification in the law which would prevent future incidents, an ATF lawyer admits: "I don't believe we have addressed the problem."

The law is supposed to restrict traffic in "what we like to refer to as 'gangster-type weapons,'" says the AF spokesman — although he promptly admits that Gibson's gun "is a collector's item more than anything else."

The helpful ATF attorney suggests that if Gibson really wants a "handy gun," he can purchase an already-registered replacement by "filling out Form 4 and taking it to a Class 3 gun dealer who has a Title I license and handles Title II weapons."

Gibson says "I don't think this is fair and it should not be the way the government acts." He's right, and his experience is all too common. But in official Washington, narrow interpretations of "the law" and "the regulations" invariably supersede any notion of dealing justly, fairly and reasonably with the citizenry.

Parks — U.S. and Soviet style

Dear Editor:

The Progress Bulletin as well as other American newspapers and political commentators have often condemned the Soviet Union for failure in "human rights." Yet, today I read in the Progress Bulletin that people in Pomona are being denied the right to enjoy their parks which they paid for (after 10:30 p.m.). I would like to advise the editors that in the USSR the parks are open at all hours of the day and night and anyone is free to enjoy any park at any time.

Furthermore, the Soviet citizen is not subject to the terror, the muggings, and the hazards which the common citizen in Pomona must face every day of his life.

Socialism and Marxist-Leninism seem to have brought peace and tranquility to the average Soviet citizen whereas capitalism seems to have brought crime, decay and general cynicism to the unfortunate citizen of Pomona.

Carl Albert's Persian rug

WASHINGTON — For the sake of the new ethics that has overtaken Washington, ex-Speaker Carl Albert gave up a prized Persian rug when he retired from politics. He just about blew a fuse, therefore, when he discovered that his favorite rug had wound up on Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's floor.

It had been a sentimental gift from a young Iranian friend who got her start in politics from an Albert speech. She became one of the few women ever to get elected to parliament in Iran, not to mention one of the youngest legislators in the Middle East, by applying Albert's Bug Tussle, Okla., campaign techniques to Teheran politics.

Albert didn't mind relinquishing two dozen other gifts in order to satisfy the strictures against accepting foreign offerings. He didn't even mind turning loose an elegant gold crown worth $3,000 that the munificent South Koreans had given him.

But he hated to part with that 59-by-91-inch, beige-and-blue Persian rug. Cold-eyed appraisers placed a $600 value upon the carpet. The law doesn't allow public officials to keep gifts, worth more than $50, from foreign dignitaries.

Albert cheerfully divested himself of 24 items on the eve of his retirement to Oklahoma. But he regarded the magic carpet as a personal gift. He was aggrieved when the State Department overruled him.

But he became considerably more aggrieved when he learned that the State Department had delivered his cherished carpet to Secretary Vance. This is legally permissible as long as Vance lays the rug only on official floors.

It wasn't that-Vance was short of carpeting. The floor of his new State Department domain is covered with luxurious, gray, wall-to-wall carpeting. But Vance rearranged the furniture to suit his own tastes after inheriting the office from Henry Kissinger. This exposed some telephone-wire holes in the carpet, which formerly had been hidden by Kissinger's furniture.

To cover the holes, the Persian rug in all its beige-and-blue splendor was spread on top of the carpeting. A solemn State Department spokesman assured us that Vance was unaware his new camouflage once had been a prized possession of Carl Albert.

But the former Speaker is not pacified. We spoke to him on the phone in McAlester, Okla. "I've got an office down here in the federal building," he grumped. "I've got a place for it. I had pretty much of a sentimental attachment for that rug."

It occured to him that his Iranian protege might call upon him some day. "I'm going to be mighty embarrassed," he said, "if she comes to Oklahoma and doesn't see it."

The State Department, skilled as it is in diplomatic finesse, has hinted to us that there may be a solution. If the gift is displayed only in the federal office space that has been allotted to the former Speaker, Vance might be prevailed on to surrender the rug and to rustle up something else to cover the holes in his carpeting.

TV TERROR — The average high school graduate, in addition to his formal education, has witnessed 18,000 murders on television. He has also had a ringside seat to "countless incidents of robbery, arson, bombing, forgery, beating and smuggling."

Yet the characters who cavort on the nation's television screens during prime time are more aggressive than ever. Not only has violence reached its highest level in prime time, it is even worse on Saturday mornings. Twice as much physical aggression is shown on the Saturday children's shows.

These are the conclusions of a confidential study by the House Communications Subcommittee. The release of the report has been mysteriously held up for weeks. Some committee members, say our sources, don't want to embarrass the network brass as they are lining up their fall program schedules. However, we have obtained a bootleg copy.

The researchers counted 42 antisocial acts per average hour on television. This amounts to one bad example for children every program minute. The violence level dipped slightly in 1974 but then soared 20 per cent during 1975-76, the study found. Much of the increase has come during the family viewing hours.

All three networks claim they have reduced the violent content of their programs. But the subcommittee found that only CBS had restricted violence. "The industry has not yet been able to come to grips with the problem," the report charges, "despite years of attention to it."

The study cites evidence that television definitely influences young minds. "Aggressive-prone children are susceptible to televised violence . . . " the report charges. "The viewing of televised violence tends to reduce children's inhibitions against acting violently; some children may copy what they see."

Rep. John Murphy, D.-N.Y., added a supplement to the report, warning that children have been injured trying to imitate the acts they have seen on the tube.

Footnote: Disputing the confidential findings, network executives strenuously maintained that violent "action programs" have decreased over the last few years. Less than 10 per cent of ABC's new fall schedule, for example, contains action shows, a spokesman contended. An NBC spokesman also claimed his network had reduced the violence content of its programs. CBS not only has cut out some police shows, but is the only network to monitor television programming in an effort to reduce scenes of violence.

What people say

"On the one hand, many businessmen encourage a rhetorical anti-communism that seems more concerned with liturgical obeisance than practical achievement. On the other hand they tend to resist — in the name of free enterprise — any attempt to control the level of trade or the rate of credits or to relate them to concrete foreign policy developments."

—Henry Kissinger, chiding U.S. business for its shortsightedness and lack of understanding of its long-range goals.

"Some standards imposed on urban areas such as New York City are impossible ones, in that they will never be achieved. Others are achievable only if we accept a firm no-growth policy."

—Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, calling for more equitable treatment for New York, citing the fact that last year the federal government took $10.6 billion more from New York state than it returned.

Just in jest

"To hear some folks tell it," sniffed a spry 85-year-old lady, "you'd think all we have to do to generate sufficient light, heat and power to last us from here on out to kingdom come is to harness the sun's rays. In fact, one sometimes gets the idea those smart-talking authorities think they are the ones who invented solar energy. — Well, let me tell you something! — We had solar energy long before many of those experts were out of diapers. And a good thing, too! I don't know what I would have done if 60 years ago I hadn't had a solar clothes dryer on a platform in my back yard. In the center of that platform was a six-foot pole around the top of which revolved a hexagonal-shaped clothes line.

"However," she continued with a sad shake of her head, "I'm sure that wouldn't satisfy today's solar energy advocates. They are perfectionists and want the sun to do ALL the work.

Teacher retirement

By EARL G. WATERS

Should teachers be granted retirement after 30 years service regardless of age? Proponents argue "yes," maintaining that under today's standards such lengthy service constitutes a "full teaching career." They also say that broadening the opportunity for retirement is necessary to make room for the overabundance of young teaching graduates seeking jobs.

The issue will come to a head soon in the Senate where AB 674, already approved by the Assembly, awaits hearings before the Senate committees dealing with public employment and finance.

Supported by the California Teachers Association, the measure is opposed by the Teachers Retirement System as well as taxpayer groups. The Retirement System's official opposition is both understandable and expected. Facing serious problems by reason of being underfunded some $8 billion, its objections are compelled by financial reasons and leave unanswered the philosophical and sociological questions.

Actually, educators may now retire as early as age 55 regardless of years of service but at a reduced rate. For the pension program is geared to a retirement age of 60 which, with 30 years service, would provide half pay.

Under AB 674, authored by Assemblyman Louis Papan, retirement would be permitted even before age 55 at near full pension for those with 30 or more years service.

That of course is the problem. Both employe and employer contributions have been computed on the half pay at age 60 with 30 years service formula. Any reductions of the age requirements without overall changes in the rates of contribution can only result in the teacher pension program becoming even more underfunded than it already is.

This, even though the present number who would instantly become eligible for early retirement is not great and is estimated to be about 2,500 by the retirement fund officials.

Recognition has been given at least in part to this aspect of the problem by the bill's author. He provides that there would be some reduction from the full retirement benefits for those opting for the early retirement. He also provides that the school districts must make additional contributions to cover to some degree the added costs for those taking early leave.

Having to bear the brunt of the costs it is left to the local school districts to grant or refuse the early retirement permitted under the bill. Thus the school boards can play Santa Claus with the taxpayers' money for a favored employe or conversely play hard-nosed and refuse the same privilege to one not so favored.

Also involved in the consideration is whether or not the pensions will really be for retirement. Recent disclosures of ploys engaged in by some school administrators may dim the chances of passage of the bill.

These revelations center on those school officials who, having taken early retirement, turn right about and enter into "consulting" contracts with the same districts from which they have just retired to do virtually the same work they had been doing, thus being paid twice for the one job.

Papan has promised to amend his bill to preclude such double dipping. Although another bill by Assemblywoman Carol Hallett aims to halt such practices, most will feel that Papan's measure should carry a built-in bar to double dipping just in case the Hallett bill falters along the way.

It loses in translation

The Soviets have a custom of inviting foreign diplomats to say a few words over Russian television each year on their respective national days.

It sounds like a nice custom. Unfortunately, U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon was barred from speaking to the Russian people this July 4th because he refused to delete one sentence from his planned address. The sentence was:

"Americans will continue to state publicly their belief in human rights and their hope that violations of these rights wherever they occur will end."

To forbid such an innocuous statement from being broadcast reveals the insecurity of Soviet bosses after nearly 60 years in power. The words "human rights" make them jump. How sad.

President Carter, while campaigning, said that he recognized this fact — yet he continues to dispense ambassadorships to amateurs.

I know of no other country in the world which selects its ambassadors from the unschooled, unskilled and unprepared — as we do.

Charles Yost was 35 years in the foreign service. He is aghast at the manner in which this President — like his predecessors — continues to go outside the ranks of our trained foreign service people in his ambassadorial appointments.

During the last presidential campaign, Jimmy Carter frequently deplored the frequent ineptness of our politically appointed ambassadors.

In his book, "Why Not the Best," he wrote of the "disgraceful and counterproductive policy of appointing unqualified persons to major diplomatic posts on political payoffs. This must be stopped immediately."

You can remember more than enough examples: Ex-actor John Davis Lodge to Spain. Bill Saxbe to India. Gen. Jim Gavin to Paris. Publisher Walter Annenberg to Britain.

We once sent an ambassador to Sri Lanka who could not pronounce the name of Sri Lanka's prime minister, Bandaraneike.

When Soapy Williams went to Africa I doubt he knew where the Congo was — until he got there.

And we still have too many such.

Factually, President Carter has made about 76 percent of his appointments to 125 embassies from among career foreign service people. And that is five to 10 percent more than heretofore.

But most of these went to 23 of 25 African posts. In Europe — where the plum posts are also the most critical ones — some 30 percent of Carter's choices will be political; in Latin America nearly 40 percent.

This criticism is not meant to include such appointees as former Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield to Japan and longtime presidential adviser Richard N. Gardner to Rome. These are politicians, to be sure, but both are men much experienced in foreign relations.

Admittedly, part of the problem is that the State Department is traditionally viewed with suspicion by the President, the Congress and the public.

F.D.R. considered State Department personnel hopelessly reactionary.

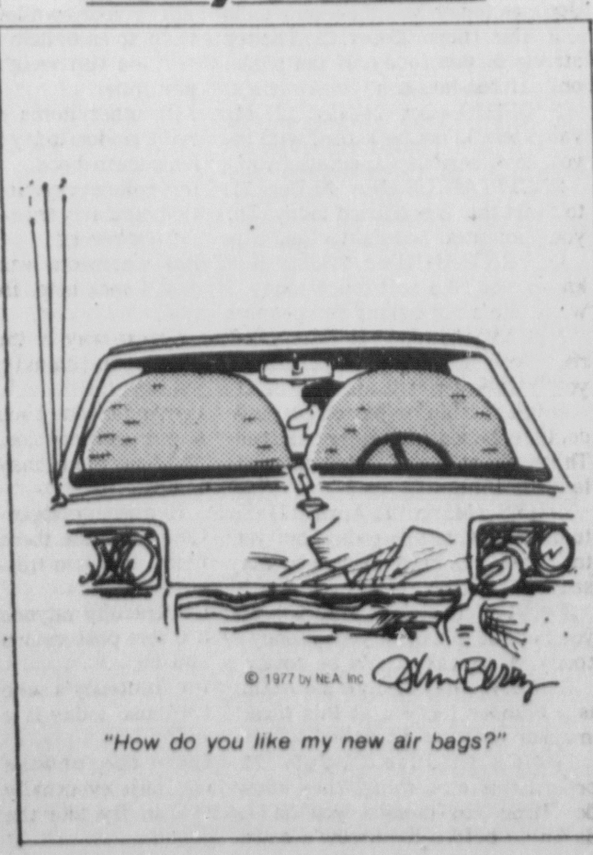

Fifteen years later, the pendulum had swung the other way and the State Department was viewed as populated mostly by Reds, subversives and/or "ugly Americans."

Longtime overseas correspondents whose judgment I have come to trust — professional observers — affirm that they have never encountered a foreign service officer who was either disloyal or disobedient.

True, the professional is likely to "tell it like it is," even to the President.

Whereas, the political appointee is likely to tell the President what he wants to hear — such things as "we can take Castro" and "we can handle Vietnam."

Ann Landers

The eloquence of simplicity

Dear Ann Landers: You are supposed to be a smart cookie. Can you figure this out? I bet my wife $10 you'd flunk just as we did.

The parent of a Houston high school pupil received a message from the school principal concerning a special meeting on a proposed new educational program.

The message read: "Our school's cross-graded, multi-ethnic, individualized learning program is designed to enhance the concept of an openended learning program with emphasis on a continuum of multi-ethnic, academically enriched learning, using the identified intellectually gifted child as the agent or director of his own learning. Major emphasis is on cross-graded, multi-ethnic learning with the main objective being to learn respect for the uniqueness of a person."

The parent responded: "Dear Principal: I have a college degree, speak two foreign languages and know four Indian dialects. I've attended a number of county fairs and three goat ropings, but I haven't the faintest idea as to what the hell you are talking about."

OK, Ann, do YOU know what the principal was trying to say? — Two Dummies In Fort Worth

Dear Friends: I don't think you are dummies. That principal needs to learn how to express himself in simple terms.

What he means is: "We are planning a program for students of all races which we hope will encourage the brighter ones to move ahead at their own speed. Grading will be geared to the learning level of the student. In this way we hope to teach and grade each student according to his ability to learn." P.S. Pay your wife the $10. Or better yet, send it to your local Heart Association.

Dear Ann Landers: Amidst your pile of kooky letters this isn't going to sound like much but it's a complaint I've heard from other secretaries, so it isn't just myself I am writing for.

I work for a firm of busy lawyers. One of my responsibilities is to handle the phones. When I tell Mr. Hossenfeffer that Mr. A is talking on another line, you wouldn't believe how many times I'm asked, "Can you tell me how long he will talk?"

Most of the people who call here are not yokels, Ann. They are business executives and other attorneys. Sometimes I get so irritated I want to scream, "How in the world do I know?"

Can you suggest a dignified response to this absolutely crazy question? — Ernestine

Dear Ern: A competent secretary can usually gauge the importance of the caller (to her boss) compared with the person he's talking to. If the caller is more important, she could say, "I'll slip Mr. X a note telling him you are on the line and he will either conclude this call or get back to you shortly." She can then let her boss decide what he wants to do.

If it's a run-of-the-mill call, the secretary should say, "I really don't know. Please leave your number and I'll ask Mr. X to return your call."

CONFIDENTIAL to He Promises To Change, But Will He?: Don't bet the rent. There is no evidence that a wedding band will serve as a tourniquet to stop a man's circulation. If he's running around during courtship he'll probably continue to run around after marriage.

What names can you recall?

The names of how many people do you suppose you can remember? In the days before telephone subscribers had numbers, the telephone operators were required simply to remember said subscribers' names. And some of the more seasoned operators could call to mind as many as 400 names.

As recently as 41 years ago, the office of Prime Minister of Great Britain did not provide for any pay. What the Prime Minister had to do to get by was combine that top job with another which did carry regular wages.

BURPLESS CUCUMBER

Q. "What's a 'burpless cucumber'?"

A. No doubt you refer to those long, thin, European cucumbers recently put on local markets. They're particularly easy to digest, I'm told.

Q. "Among four-footed mammals, which is the best swimmer?"

A. The polar bear, without a doubt. And oddly, it only uses its forepaws in the water.

One hundred years before the American Revolution, land here sold for $1 an acre while coffee beans cost $4.65 a pound.

Two thirds of the women who graduate from college wind up in jobs completely unrelated to their majors.

THE DIVORCED

Those divorced persons who remarry again and again tend to stay married less long with each successive partner. Average first marriage that ends in divorce lasts about 10 years. But if it's the second marriage for each that ends in divorce, figure it lasts an average of 4.8 years. Third marriage for each, 3 years.

Another thing you can do to while away the time at stoplights is enumerate onetime brand names that fell into the public domain. Like: pocketbook, cube steak, linoleum, escalator, kiddie car, mineral oil, phonograph, kerosene, cornflakes, aspirin, cellophane, so on.

Chemists can make detergents that wash excellently well without any suds, but they just don't sell.

Please note, millions of people who live in India can't speak the national language, Hindu.

It's also a proven statistical fact that 27 per cent of the nation's women have at one time or another played poker for money.

Dr. Miller

Rabbit hopping mad over kitten

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rhapsody, my rabbit, has been hopping mad since last week when we got a new kitten. Will he get over it? He's three times as big as Myrt, the kitten, so he's in no danger, is he? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: Rhapsody rabbit's reasonably safe, but Myrt might get a boot out of this relationship at any given moment. In fact, for the first few weeks I'd be much more concerned about Myrt making it than recalcitrant Rhapsody. Time tempers tempers, usually. It's not unlikely that your rabbit could run the gamut from hopping mad to happy to having found a bosom buddy. Rabbits and cats can occasionally be compatible companions.

DEAR DR. MILLER: People down the block have a pinched-up, skinny, long-nosed dog with little eyes. It's called a Borzoi, whatever they are. The owner of that dog's trying to tell me it can see better than Flouncy, my Pekingese. I can't believe those beady little eyes could see half as well as the Peke's. He'll read my letter in your column, and that's great; he'll read your answer, too. Please tell him. — J.B.II

DEAR J.B. II: Superior vision would have to be qualified, but certainly your prominent-eyed Peke does have the best vision in a couple of areas. Flouncy can probably see better directly in front of that "pushed in" nose of hers, and she also has a better view (behind) of where she's been (without turning her head, that is.)

If you're referring to keeness of vision at any distance, however, that beady-eyed Borzoi (Russian wolfhound) has superior visual acuity. It's a member of that group of large dogs known as "sighthounds" which depend on keen vision rather than sensitive snoot. These dogs rely on excellent (far-sighted) vision to find and keep game in sight, and on speed to catch up with it.

No Food Before — should be the rule in taking your animal in to the doctor. There are many advantages to fasting on the day he goes in for a visit. These range from the doctor's being able to palpate the abdomen better if the stomach is empty, to taking more meaningful laboratory tests should these be necessary, to safer sedation should the doctor decide that the situation calls for a quick anesthetic. The no-food-before rule can save valuable time and expense, and often can spare the patient overnight hospitalization or a return visit.

How to travel with children

Every year, there is a childless writer who will set down suggestions on how to travel with children and have a wonderful time.

They paint a picture of serenity . . . the children's little noses pressed to the windows waving to cows, Mother pointing out national monuments, and Daddy leading the entire group in a moving rendition of "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The latest article to come across my desk is one of the best yet.

"Put pillows, snacks, a change of clothes and some of the children's favorite toys inside the car where they can be easily reached.

"Plan for rest stops about every two hours and if possible take a brief walk on these stops.

"Once back on the road talk about what they saw and did during each stop.

"Use your imagination for other kinds of entertainment. Play guessing games and sing songs."

Doesn't that make you want to go right out and buy a child for your next trip?

Well, friends, you're not talking to an amateur today. I have travelled with children for the last 20 years, been in three rest homes, five encounter groups, written 15 letters to Dale Evans asking for spiritual guidance, and was in analysis two years after I once admitted to abandoning a 10-year-old in a roadside gift shop. I have a few suggestions of my own.

The pillow is a great idea. The first one who whines, "Make him stop looking at me," gets it — right over the face.

As for commercial games and toys, forget 'em. Children usually like to make up their own. There's "Name That Thud." With her head turned toward the no-draft, Mom has to guess what is making Robbie cry out in pain. There's "Window Roulette" where all the bodies in the back seat are airborne trying to get a seat by the two windows. Other cars will often slow down to watch this one.

I personally like "Statue," a take-off on the old summer game where Mom reaches over the back seat, gives each a thump and no matter what position they land in, they must remain that way for the next 200 miles.

If you encourage a child to share with you his observations of the last pit stop, be prepared to hear language from a restroom wall that will make your radiator boil over.

Throughout the years I have discovered there is only one way to thoroughly enjoy your travels with children. When you're over-kidsed, travel under sedation.

Dr. Lamb

Confusion about blood sugar

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has suggested that I limit desserts and carbohydrates and have some protein mid-morning and mid-afternoon. A blood sugar test two hours after breakfast was 60, normal being 60 to 110.

How many grams of carbohydrates per day should I have to consider that a low-carbohydrate diet? Also, how much protein should I have per day?

Is there any way to detect the difference between a headache caused by hypoglycemia and all the other reasons for having a headache?

DEAR READER — Let me point out at once that the definition of the normal range for blood glucose is wrong.

A large number of normal people have values below 60. In an excellent article in the New England Journal of Medicine (Volume 291, page 905, 1974), doctors found 23 per cent of a normal population had values below 50. Many healthy people with no symptoms had values as low as 35. A similar result was found by Fitzsimons Army Medical center (Journal of American Medical Assoc. September 22, 1975). This is important because too many people get a diagnosis of hypoglycemia because a low blood glucose level is found on a blood test.

The only way a diagnosis of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) can be justified is by observing both the low blood sugar level and the symptoms occurring together. The symptoms attributed to low blood sugar can be caused by many things and the low blood levels can occur in perfectly normal people. For more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. This issue will also give you more detailed information on a proper diet for those who really need a diet for that purpose.

Headaches can be caused by a list of things as long as your arm. I would not think it was caused by hypoglycemia unless there were some other symptoms of hypoglycemia at the time of low blood sugar levels. And I would want a level below 50.

And I don't agree with eliminating all your carbohydrates or most of them. You might do better to eliminate concentrated sweets and I'm sure that is what your doctor meant. Carbohydrates include all your cereal group of basic foods, your fruits and vegetables. These are all important sources of vitamins and minerals in your diet. Milk also is a major source of carbohydrate. You should be able to eat all the leafy salad vegetables and could eat raw fruits and vegetables. Eating a 333-gram raw apple which contains 50 grams of glucose will not alter the blood glucose level. Why? Because it is absorbed slowly. I think at a minimum you should try to get 100 grams of carbohydrates a day.

It is true that some people eat too many carbohydrates for breakfast. Switching the evening meal to morning and vice versa may help. You should avoid coffee, alcohol and cigarettes. You may need to taper off on coffee if you use a lot or you may have withdrawal headaches.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Conditions in general could be very pleasant this coming year and that's good. Take care, however, it doesn't cause you to coast when you should be in high gear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be lured into a game of one-upsmanship today and you'll put your heart into it. Only later will you realize you scored no points. Find out more of what lies ahead for you be sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When you really stop to think, you're not so bad off. If you try to keep up with the Joneses today, you'll become unhappy with your own lot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The temptation to embellish is strong in you today. If the scale shows the fish weighs only 11 ounces, don't make it a three-pounder.

SCOPRIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Money or other items of value should not be loaned with reckless abandon today if you have serious expectations of getting them back.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take everything to heart that's promised today. This is particularly true if your potential benefactor has a poor track record.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is someone who knows you're a soft touch today. He could seek help. Be wary. He's not asking for peanuts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The easiest way is the route you're likely to take today. Much to your dismay, you'll discover it leads to a dead end.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a danger today you could underestimate the caliber of your competition. Those you thought you'd vanquish in the first round may last the limit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There are many opportunities around you today, but you may not handle them too wisely. In retrospect, you may realize that you missed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Choose carefully anyone you permit to handle your money or valuable possessions today. A mistake could be costly to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Acting for expediency's sake is a blunder for you at this time. A promise today is a marker that can be called tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Only the unwise procrastinate on things they know they must eventually do. Time you thought you had today can fly like the darkness before tomorrow's dawn.

Opening lead — 2♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

This business of not leading fourth best against notrump unless you hold one of the four top honors is not always successful. Today's hand decided an important IMP match. The bidding went the same way at both tables and each West player decided to open a spade.

At table one the lead was the old-fashioned deuce from a four-card suit. Declarer rose with dummy's king and lost the club finesse. West led back a club. Declarer knocked out the ace of diamonds and got another club led back at him.

He could now count on two diamonds, two clubs and one heart and decided the way to get four spade tricks would be to play West for the jack. So he led a spade from his hand, finnessed dummy's 10 and had to be content with the unhappy result of down one.

At table two the lead was the new-fangled seven spot. South rose with dummy's king and the play proceeded just about the same way as at table one except that at this table South knew where the jack of spades was. Eventually he played dummy's queen of spades, dropped East's jack and had his nine tricks and a 12 IMP gain.

Ask the Jacobys

A New Hampshire reader wants to know if it is ever proper to lead from a king at trick one.

The answer is that, of course, it is. What would he do with:

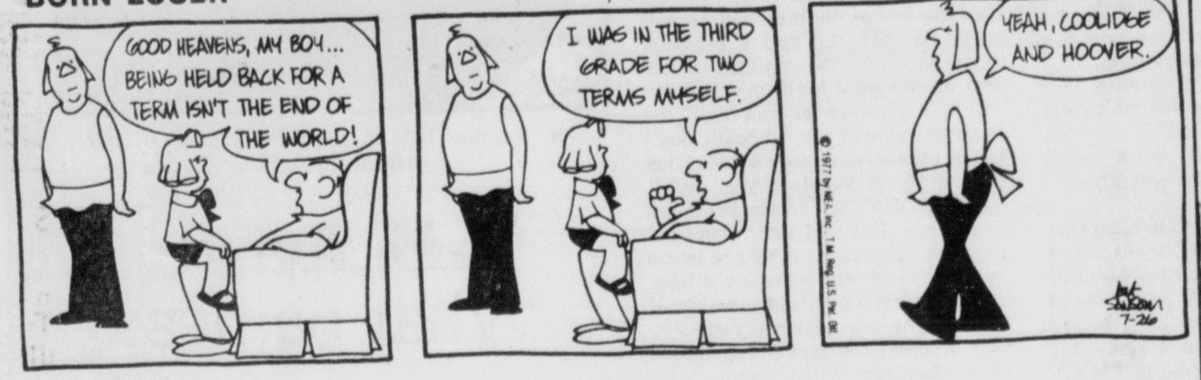

♠ K xx ♥ K xx ♦ K xx ♣ K xxx

More seriously, the lead from a king is frequently a very good one.

Several times in the earth's history, the climate has grown cold. Ice and snow didn't melt and run off into the oceans, but piled up into great sheets of ice covering much of the earth.

These times, each lasting thousands of years, were "ice ages."

The last ice age ended only a few thousand years ago. At its peak, ice sheets thousands of feet thick covered most of North America. So much of the world's water was locked up in ice that the level of the ocean was much lower than it is today.

As the ice spread, it pushed as far south as present-days states of Washington, Illinois, Ohio, and New Jersey.

As the forzen mass slowly advanced, it bulldozed hills flat, carved valleys and gouged out lake basins.

At present, the earth is in-between ice ages. Scientists don't know exactly what causes an ice age. But they do know that, perhaps thousands of years from now, another ice age will begin.

Progress Bulletin

VALLEY WOMEN 1977

Salute to Women

Great interest in the community and dedication to improving conditions for the underprivileged are the tenets by which clubwomen are known in the valley. Some dedicate their efforts toward concern for the young, the sick and the old while others turn their efforts toward education and politics.

All this comes at a time when some factions question volunteerism on the part of women.

Today the Progress Bulletin salutes four Woman Achievers along with thousands of valley clubwomen in the 16th annual edition of Valley Women for their great effort in helping their communities.

Winners of the 12th annual awards are Julia Arri, Claremont; Georgia McManigal, Claremont; Gertha Speiginer, Pomona, and Judy Wright, Claremont. Their stories are found on pages 7, 10, 14 and 20.

The staff of the Progress Bulletin is very grateful to the individuals who submitted nominations for the awards and who completed forms on the many organizations so their club stories could be told in this edition.

We regret omissions and request that officers of organizations who did not return information blanks send their club stories to the Family Editor so that club news may be printed in the Family News daily columns of the paper

Thank you.

JULIA ARRI

National leader

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The encouragement of educational and vocational opportunities for women throughout the world — especially those in the undeveloped nations — is the ambition of 1977 Woman Achiever Julia K. Arri of Claremont.

A desire, successfully accomplished, to improve her own career through education and training, has now expanded to include assisting other young women in attaining their highest potential.

Entering the business world as a switchboard operator, Mrs. Arri continued on to become a bookkeeper and, today, heads her own business firm which specializes in accounting, financial planning and taxation. She holds the top license in her field including an Internal Revenue Service treasury card.

"I've worked all my adult life," Mrs. Arri reports. "I had been a switchboard operator, but after coming to California in 1946 from Long Island, I decided to attend college."

She attended UCLA, taking courses in bookkeeping and attaining a background in accounting, and started her professional advancement.

"Many nonconventional jobs are open to women today in such companies as General Telephone and Edison," says Mrs. Arri.

"Women are becoming technicians and electricians because the pay is better and counselors are telling young women that they can enter any field they wish."

Mrs. Arri is chairman of the Advisory Board for Continuing Education at the Claremont Colleges.

She also serves as a trustee for the Business and Professional Women's Foundation which is supported by the National Federation of BPW Clubs. The foundation grants scholarships and loans to advance careers of women.

Long active in BPW state and national offices and is now attending the national convention where she is the candidate for first vice president.

When she was state president of BPW, the achiever was instrumental in developing leadership training and individual development courses for clubs in the state. The plans were later adopted by the national federation for use across the country.

Looking forward to 1979, when she will probably be the national federation president, Mrs. Arri plans to incorporate outreach activities in other nations.

The first step in the plan is the support of the California BPW's project, in conjunction with UNICEF, to finance a vocational guidance center in Costa Rica for young men and women.

"American women must take an active role in upgrading the potential of these people. They have too few women of their own with adequate backgrounds."

Mrs. Arri recently attended the International Federation Congress in Helsinki, Finland, and reports that 44 women serve in the parliament of the northern European nation.

"Delegates also discovered that several of the world's underdeveloped nations now have women involved in their politics and professions," she adds.

Mrs. Arri serves as the Western Division chairman for the National Equal Rights Amendment Ratification Fund Raising Committee which has raised over $250,000 in support of the legislation.

"What many people fail to realize is that equal rights extends to all persons — it should be called People's Rights," explains Mrs. Arri. "After all, any right extended to a woman must be given to a man."

As a professional in the field of accounting and taxation, Mrs. Arri finds that many women are totally ignorant of the necessary business skills that they must have in case of becoming divorced or a widow. She is concerned about training for these women.

Active in the Democrat party, Mrs. Arri was a candidate for the 49th Assembly Seat in 1972. She also served on the Lloyd for Congress Committee and was appointed by Rep. Jim Lloyd (D-West Covina) to the Democratic Central Committee.

A less-known side of the achiever is her love of creating gourmet meals for her husband Joseph, better known as George.

She collects cookbooks during her many trips in which she tallies some 30,000 miles a year.

GEORGIA McMANIGAL

Interests varied

By MARY REMILLARD

A woman with innumerable interests, unbounded energy and a supportive family is Georgia McManigal, a 1977 PB Woman Achiever.

"I like to think that I have had many mini-careers," she says, "and they have come along as I have charted a course and laid new ground when taking on new assignments, new interests during my years as a volunteer."

Mrs. McManigal's interests fall principally into six categories, music, education, civic, cultural, political and family and church. She hastens to point out that those interests are not necessarily in the order in which they read.

The mother of three children, Keith, 16, Sara, 15, and Brent, 12, and wife of Craig McManigal, attorney and former mayor of Claremont, says she could never accomplish what she does if her family didn't agree to it and if she did not have the boundless energy that so characterizes her.

"My husband is often involved in business at night and during those hours I find myself able to catch up on many household chores that don't have to take my daytime hours," she explains.

The McManigals met at Pomona College and were married after graduation in 1954. While he was in the Armed Services she taught in Atlanta, Ga., and when he entered law school she taught in Los Angeles. Their interests have run along the same lines and they have worked together as volunteers. Most recently they have been cochairmen for the auditorium events committee at the Claremont Colleges. The committee is made up of faculty, students and community personnel.

During the last year they were cochairmen for the Pomona Valley fund-raising for Bridges Auditorium.

Although not serving as the president of many organizations Mrs. McManigal says she is an "Idea Girl" and in that capacity works well, thoroughly, communicates well and includes everyone available in the work to be done.

"I have tried to say yes to things that challenge me, causes I believe in and that involve people I respect. I find that I have to say no occasionally," she says.

Her interest in music sometimes surprises people, but she majored in music in college and has played violin for 16 years with the Claremony Symphony and in Santa Monica.

She says her persons don't understand her necessity to be a part of what is going on in her community, but, she hastens to add, she doesn't want people to think her family isn't the top priority in her busy life.

"The family comes first and we spend a great deal of time together, here and in the mountains. I love to cook and to involve the family in that hobby," she says.

"Of course, much of my volunteer work stems from the interests of my children," she says, "and we still find time for our interest in duplicate bridge and the symphony."

Her involvement includes Children's Home Society, public relations chairman locally and for the county; AAUW, Claremont Methodist Church, education commission, finance commission; Assistance League of Pomona Valley, life member; Claremont Symphony; Claremont Music Festival, Claremont Colleges Viennese Gala chairman; Pomona College Alumni Council; PFA at two Claremont schools; Girl Scouts, field trip chairman; residence board member for Claremont Manor, Bridges Auditorium; Claremont Friends of Foreign Students, Webb School, Women's Service Board, Boy Scouts; Claremont Coordinating Council; Sister City Association; Claremont Civic Association; Republican Women's Club, City Capital Improvements Committee; Curtain Raisers and Foothill Philharmonic; board member formerly for Claremont YMCA; election campaign chairman for Ray Haas for city council; election campaign chairman for Mary Ellen Kilsby for school board; committee member of Artist Course for Youth Scholarship Fund; only non-college member of budget committee for auditorium and theater and concert events for Claremont Colleges; chairman of Food for Kaleidoscope for Assistance League of Pomona Valley.

"If you choose interestingly and carefully you will find it very satisfying to work with outstanding and interesting people. And you will discover other talents and new avenues to explore," Mrs. McManigal says.

Reminder

With America moving out of doors for the spring and summer, Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist, offers this reminder about insect repellents.

These products are formulated to repel, not kill, biting insects such as mosquitoes, chiggers and flies. Personal repellents are intended for application to exposed skin and can safely be applied to most clothing.

An outdoor spray fogger (such as Raid Yard Guard), which combines an insecticide with a repellent ingredient, is designed for spraying in the air and can safely be used along with personal repellents to insure greater protection outdoors.

GERTHA SPEIGINER

Aims for equality

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Gertha Speiginer is a fighter, an equalizer, a seeker of law and justice. She is also a 1977 Woman Achiever.

Mrs. Speiginer, 60, a native of St. Louis, Mo., moved to Pomona in 1948. Now in her fourth term as president of the Pomona Valley NAACP, she is well-known as a community activist.

Local officials view her as a lioness with velvet covered claws. She deals with people as persistently as a mathematician deals with figures. The smile is camouflage for the torrent of conviction that burns within her about equalizing treatment of black people.

"If you aren't part of the solution, then you're definitely a part of the problem. You can't straddle the fence of human dignity" is her motto.

Mrs. Speiginer and her husband, Louis, have eight daughters. The love of children thrust her out into the community in 1964 to deal with discrimination against the city's black children and school and community problems which developed in black and white conflict.

Her main concern has been that opportunity be even-handed to allow for achievement and moving out of the ghetto of oppression. She is a strategist who carefully studies and calculates before acting. Where inequity exists, she pulls together the forces to correct that inequity.

"I'm out here because I believe in the ideas of democracy. I believe that all people should have equal rights and access to those wonderful things that only a few enjoy now," she said.

"I believe when the rights of one person are denied all people are in danger of losing those rights as stated in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and all its amendments. I do not believe in separatism. That's why I've dedicated myself under the banner of the NAACP in working toward an united community. I belive in unity."

Rights and responsibilities go together, she continued, and education is a means of defining those areas in relation to self, family, community and nation.

"If there are to be any changes in our society as far as human relations are concerned, as Horace Mann said, it will have to be done through education.

Mrs. Speiginer sometimes feels "like a woman alone." She has dealt with issues of discrimination others have feared to touch, acting with courage and integrity. Has active participation in community affairs has been motivated by a sense of conscience.

She makes no excuses, offers no alliances and is unequivocally honest. Respect, honesty and accountability are the three most important things to her. She is also a believer in following rules and the fairness of those rules.

"I belive in law and justice. If the law is going to work for one, it should work for another and not be applied in terms of whether the wrongdoer is black or white. Anytime one person is allowed to break the law, the law breaks down."

Pomona has many problems and Mrs. Speiginer plans to continue her efforts to solve those problems.

"My hopes for Pomona are to see people who are sincerely — humanly and not just politically — interested in the growth of our city, the improvement of human relations and understanding among our many and diverse groups. That is my dream."

Mrs. Speiginer has acted effectively in the areas of education, employment, fair housing, police brutality, and administrative accountability of public, private and community officials and of public and private employers.

She has served as local NAACP education chairman and vice president; co-founder Pomona Parents Council and Parents For Understanding 1965 and 1967; member Palomares Multiracial Parents Committee, 1968; quality education plan volunteer 1971; co-chairman District Advisory Committee Emergency School Aid Act 1973-77; first vice president Southern Area Conference NAACP since 1973; member board of directors Los Angeles County Comprehensive Health Planning Council 1975-77; advisory board Pomona YMCA Outreach; Pomona Valley Gemco Scholarship judge since 1971.

She has been lauded by school, community and college groups and the state Assembly; named 1976 Citizen of the Year by Epsilon Eta Omega of Alpha Kappa Alpha and listed in the 1976 editions "Who's Who in Black America" and "Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans," "Notable Americans of 1976-77" and "The World's Who's Who of Women 1977."

Fine Arts unit aids Scripps

The purpose of the FINE ARTS FOUNDATION OF SCRIPPS COLLEGE is to stimulate public interest in art and to provide financial assistance to the art department of Scripps College, its students and its faculty.

Officers of the 270 member group are Mrs. Charles S. Holmes, 1010 Berkeley, Claremont, president; Mrs. John Esterline, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Ethridge, secretary; Mrs. James Leonhard, treasurer; and Mrs. Mel Hodell and Mrs. David B. Welsh, publicity chairmen.

The group meets on the first Tuesday of the month.

Highlights of the foundations activities included a luncheon meeting honoring Dr. and Mrs. John Chandler, the new president of Scripps College. Each month art related lecture meetings were held concluding with Page Rense, the dynamic editor of "Architectual Digest" and the new magazine "Bon Appetit." At the end of the year Jean Ames presented FAF with six drawings which have been reproduced and will be offered for sale as a limited edition to FAF members and friends of Scripps College.

JUDY WRIGHT

A professional

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Claremonter Judy Wright, a 1977 Progress Bulletin Woman Achiever, describes herself as a "professional volunteer" and a "moderate" who "seeks compromise."

Of her many involvements, she said her position on the Claremont Planning Commission probably "has the greatest influence" in terms of what happens in Claremont, "and I really care about what happens in Claremont," she said.

"I feel very strongly about what happens to the hillsides. The Planning Commission is looking towards a new hillside ordinance this fall. I want my point of view represented.

"I think old houses should be preserved, maintained. We must have flexibility and let people make improvements and expansions. I find very few with a housing conscience. Existing housing must be preserved because it is so valuable. "And, I want to see that Claremont remains an attractive and yet a very different community."

Wife of Colin Wright, faculty dean at Claremont Men's College, and mother of 13-year-old Campbell Wright, Mrs. Wright in addition to her volunteer work is homemaker, hostess and chauffeur. A former teacher, she gets up some mornings at 5 to help with homework because she attends so many night meetings.

Currently her major volunteer interests are centered around state board activities of the League of Women Voters, of which she is a member; Claremont Heritage, where she is assistant in historical research; and the Claremont Coordinating Council, where she keeps abreast of other volunteer activities within the community.

"Fortunately," she explained, "my husband has always earned enough money I have not had to work, but I've felt I could contribute as a volunteer. Most of my work has been centered in politics.

"I've always been interested in education, and before moving to Claremont (1972) did most of my volunteer work in that field.

"I grew up in a family that considered volunte work and communit vice important. It' bed off on me. 968 as a

Mrs. Wri board of volunteer the Lincoln mem PA (legislation) in dir Evanston, Ill., where she also taught typing to disadvantaged young women.

The following year, she was named to the board of the League of Women Voters in Evanston and chaired a government reorganization study. As vice president of the Evanston PTA Council, she chaired two successful (elementary and high school) tax increase campaigns.

That same year, 1969-70, she chaired a PTA committee which succeeded in opening up school board elections in Evanston (away from the caucus system) for the first time in 40 years.

She remained active in League of Women Voters, serving as vice president in 1971-72 helping to restructure league organization; was Evanston PTA Council school education chairman; was a school volunteer and taught a YMCA course.

Immediately upon her arrival in Claremont, Mrs. Wright took a volunteer assignment at Sycamore school, was named chairman of the international relations committee of the Claremont League of Women Voters, served as a school district observer for the league and bought and started to restore a 1928 Helen Wren house.

A year later, she was named to the league board as program chairman. She coordinated observers and an all-city transportation survey. Also in 1973, she became corresponding secretary for the Claremont Coordinating Council, continued as a library volunteer at Sycamore and became a member-at-large of the Sycamore PFA board.

Mrs. Wright was Sycamore PFA president in 1974-75, continued as a league director and coordinated an all-city campaign which resulted in Claremont Dial-a-Ride.

She was named to a school district Facilities Utilities Task Force, continued in the Sycamore library and became a county deputy registrar voters.

In 1975-76 and ent Mrs. Wright w gue of of the Clare rliamen- Women A and El Roble tari , continued her S with the Coordinating ouncil and joined Claremont Heritage.

She was appointed to the Planning Commission in March.

She serves on the Foothill Philharmonic Committee.

Suggested for the diet

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

I discovered on a trip through rural France some years ago that almost every French home, from lordly chateau to humble farmhouse, featured hors d'oeuvre for luncheon.

It might be a luxurious, Truffle-filled plate of goose liver or a simple assortment of sliced sausage redolent of garlic and set off with chilled radishes. The appetizer was a noon ritual.

Americans, used to eating their midday meal on the run, have little time or inclination to dally with appetizers at that hour. But they have become a fixture at that admirable U.S. institution, the cocktail party.

Having spoiled my appetite for dinner at countless such affairs where trays of meat, fish and cheese canapes enticed me, I finally hit on a method of enjoying cocktails with a snack, in my own house at least, without feeling satiated. Fittingly, a second visit to France solved my problem. The answer is that delightful mixture of raw vegetable bits the French call les crudites.

Crudites are not only nonfattening and nonfilling, but they are cheap and easy to fix.

A plate of these goodies usually includes tomato wedges and sliced cucumbers dunked in a spicy mix. Dress the plate up with radishes and maybe a few olives.

You can also serve young, raw broadbeans piled on a dish in their pods to be eaten with a little salt and thin strips of celery consumed the same way. Then there are the raw green and red peppers cut into thin rounds, and carrots with the yellow core removed and the golden remainder chopped to almost puree consistency and mixed with finely minced shallots.

Don't be bugged

As certain as summer sun, your outdoor eating plans will be 'bugged' this year unless you take precautionary steps to keep insects from ruining outdoor fun.

"Before setting the table for an outdoor barbecue," suggests Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist, "treat the area with an outdoor fogger, such as Yard Guard, at least 15 minutes before the fun begins. Fifteen seconds of spray will clear insects from an area covering about 500 square feet and the fogger's repellent ingredient will keep insects away."

Keeping clean

A piano or home organ can be a priceless family treasure, and special care should be given to cleaning the keys, according to Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist. "Most leading manufacturers use plastic keyboards today and generally a mild cleaner, such as Jubilee, can be used for effective cleaning," Mrs. Wood says. A cleaner of this type will not cause yellowing of plastic or the ivory keys of an older piano, as do ammonia and other harsh cleaning solutions.

She recommends applying a small amount with a small damp cloth to about an octave at a time, then polish immediately.

Easy-care hair

Beauty short-cuts are almost like money in the bank to the working woman, says Johnson Wax consumer information specialist, Leslie Wood. "Hair is such an important part of any woman's appearance, finding a style that works with her hair texture should be the first step in any beauty regime.

"Haircutting is not a job for amateurs," advises Mrs. Wood, "so it's important that a woman go to a stylist whose work she knows and likes. With the right cut, daily upkeep is kept to a minimum. Sometimes, no more than brushing into place after a shower. Using a combination creme rinse and conditioner, such as Agree, will also help make hair easier to manage — a big plus on busy mornings."

Hair care easy

Whatever you choose to use — blow-dryer, electric rollers or a curling iron — modern electronic appliances have made hair care easy, says Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist. But these hair appliances also have a tendency to dry hair, so regular use of a conditioner should be a vital part of any beauty program. Agree, a 99.75 per cent oil-free creme rinse and conditioner, provides deep conditioning yet leaves hair looking and feeling significantly less oily than other leading products.

Cover up and go, go

Bicycle riding is great for the body, but it can hurt your hair, says Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist. How? Too much sun and wind.

"Sun can be very damaging to even the healthiest hair and if you part your hair in the center or high on the side, you can wind up with a nasty little strip of sunburn," Miss Wood warns.

Too much wind is also drying and may result in some terrible tangles.

Club unit assists youth

SETTING THE MOOD FOR SUMMER

Why so much fuss about a spring or summer wardrobe? Why a special shopping trip to buy a new outfit for a special occasion? The answer is related to human psychology. Today clothing and accessories do more than merely keep the body warm and protected. They set a mood, frame an attitude, imbue confidence. Fine jewelry also plays a part in this magic. And the two mood-making gemstones for summer are coral and ivory.

Both coral and ivory are organic gems. This means they were formed from once-living plants or animals. Ivory comes from the tusk of the elephant, the hippopotamus, the walrus and the wart hog. Coral is formed from the skeletons of tiny sea creatures.

Ivory appears in one very characteristic warm white color while coral grows in a range from white to red. The most characteristically summer shade of coral are white, light pink (called angel skin) and the light, warm salmon color.

Shapes and colors blend together to give a summery look to an outfit. Coral may be strung together branch-like for a casual necklace to add interest to the area bared by a sundress. It may be carved into beads to drape over a gauzy peasant blouse. The vanilla color popular with designers this year provides a stunning backdrop for the salmon shades of coral. And what shows off a hard-earned tan better than white on bronze skin, in bangles, beads or another bold form.

Datwanis keep it in the family

NEW YORK (NEA) — The Beatles, an English musical group prominent in the '60s, were noted for their influence on contemporary music, hair styles and Eddie Datwani.

"I was a student here in '66," says Datwani, 32, a short, pleasant man from India, "and when the Beatles started bringing the Indian influence over, I said this is the time to get into Indian imports."

So he did. Then, in '75, he got into St. Michel, his own junior sportswear house.

Actually, St. Michel is part of a Datwani network which works like this. There are seven Datwani brothers. Two run St. Michel in New York. Two more run the Parisian counterpart, called Clothilde. And two more run Clothilde in England. That leaves two other brothers, but Datwani says not to worry about them — they're involved in other things.

"Each company has its own designer," he explains, "and three times a year we all meet in Paris and exchange ideas for our spring, summer, fall and holiday lines."

If you want the truth, the Parisian designer probably has the real clout because, Datwani says, "Paris is still the trendsetter. The soft romantic look was the biggest thing in Paris a year ago and it's just starting here.

Pretty pastel blouses with tucks, embroidery and lace insets — that's how the Datwanis went with it. But that's nothing compared to what they did to arm the discriminating, sophisticated junior customer against a chaotic world.

They're bringing order and control to her with rugged, military, gutsy, woodsy details: gun patches, ribbons and tabs on shirts; pockets that literally button down on the wrists of a quilted balloon jacket; canvas and corduroy fatigue pants.

These are all done in neutrals which, of course, make for wonderful camouflage in combat zones like the subway, and there are more pants than skirts to facilitate retreats -- or advances.

The junior customer can flush the items out in junior or better junior departments in lots of stores such as Macy's, Saks, Bloomingdale's, Limited Stores and Corduroy Corner, and she won't need more than $14 to $40 per item.

How Datwani can turn out such nicely crafted clothes at such nicely considerate prices has to do with his heritage again.

"The clothes are made in India and, since we're Indian and own our own factories there, it's easier for us to have good quality control."

Don't discriminate

Chigger mites attack man, beasts and birds without discrimination and their bite can cause itching and red blotches. Chiggers live and breed in weeds, heavy grass and thick vegetation warns Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax Consumer information specialist. She says the best way to repel and discourage these pests is to use a personal insect repellent such as OFF! on your ankles, legs, socks and even the cuffs of your slacks.

Educating the pros

Redken Laboratories provides great impetus for today's cosmetologists and barber stylists to gain true professional recognition and standing. The company knows that the professionals in the beauty industry must have meaningful knowledge of hair, skin, nails and nutrition in order to best serve their clients. To that end, Redken provides in-depth educational seminars in many locations throughout the United States, Canada and Europe on hair and skin and related subjects to keep the professionals up-to-date and aware of the latest scientific and technological advances.

Thousands of beauticians, cosmetologists and barber stylists attend Redken-sponsored seminars, confernces and forums each year. Redken's hair research department currently communicates with more than 80,000 licensed professionals in the beauty and barber industry who also receive scientific and business management guidance and trade developments from Redken on a regular basis.

Redkin spent close to $1 million in 1975 on research into the scientific nature of hair and skin, contributing to the development of cosmetic products based on that information. Its research staff includes experts in bio-chemistry, physical organic chemistry, molecular biology, pharmaceutical chemistry and medicine.

Redken's complete research facilities include a cosmetic chemistry laboratory, mineral analysis facilities, laboratories for botanical research, skin care, quality control, optical microscopy, bio-chemistry, microbiology, histology, radio isotope research, skin electron microscopy, tissue culture, biophotography and others, plus product evaluation centers.

Emphasizing scientific research and technology for the development of all its beauty aid products, Redken's product line is designed to heighten each individual's natural beauty, not to cover up existing or potential problems. Since 1960, Redken has been the pioneer in the development of "acid-balanced" products which are formulated to maintain the naturally acidic pH of hair and skin. In fact, the company's first two products, Amino Pon Shampoo and P.P.T., a hair reconditioner, are still among the best selling Redken products.

Outlook for winter fashions is elegance

PARIS (AP) — Furs, capes, a few ruffles and dressy elegance are the outlook for next winter's haute couture collections.

After Cardin jumped the gun Sunday with a semicouture collection in Lyons, Franc3's textile capital, Dior, Scherrer and others showed here Monday, the first official day of the collections.

Suits and skirts to knee or below (generally shorter than last year) are one main feature. Trousers are slim, low key and down-played. Couture is shunning the kookiness and sportiness of ready-to-wear, and last year's extravagant volume is being trimmed to manageable proportions.

But wild is one word for Jean-Louis Scherrer's collection, shown a cacophony of savage jungle cat howls. Inspired by Raquel Welch, whom he met designing costumes for her next film, "Animal," Scherrer let go on pelts — draping fox or leopard from big capes, on toques, and using them as belts with rhinestone claws clutching at the waist.

However, he kept his best client, Mme. Valery Giscard d'Estaing in mind; the wonderful Prince of Wales or houndstooth cashmere suits with plaid skirts and belted jackets in shooting jacket style, often topped by big loden capes or fringed leather ponchos, looked great for a day at the chateau; day colors were autumnal rust, browns, greens.

Scherrer went for ultrasophistication in late-day wear, with the "lady in black." She came out in long, swirling silk dresses, gold-embroidered long suits with boxy jackets, even an "Anna Karenina" romantic version with embroidered front panels, nipped waist — and, of cosrse, fox fur trim.

"My furs aren't endangering any species," said Scherrer after the show, looking hurt at the suggestion. "These are farm-raised animals; even the leopards!"

An ultrafeminine Parisienne girl with a "Gigi" bow in her hair and a ruff at her neck inspired Marc Bohan at Dior. He put on a show that brought delighted smiles from the onlookers who included Sydne Rome, Bianca Jagger, Mme. Georges Pompidou and Joseph Losey, the film director.

It was a beautiful show with a lot of luxury you'd never see in ready-to-wear. Suits with skirts were lovely and new, the skirts easily gathered or sometimes pleated, with neat little boxy jackets with rounded collars and patch pockets — called "Claudine" jackets, presumably from the character in Colette stories. Other toppers included extrafull blousons or parkas.

Coats and capes were huge and dramatic, from the daytime large boxy plaid coats with dropped shoulders and turned-up sleeves to fur-lined taffeta raincoats (always a Dior favorite).

The Gigi girl came out for late afternoon, too, with ruffled collars, close waists, skirts bouffant from the hip, often in cloque silk with a contrasting petticoat underneath. Bohan is mad for black, and it turned up short and long, with narro chemise or ruffed tops, and in dressy trouser suits.

But Dior's great look for evening was the eye-popping gazar taffeta capes — enormous but light, with mounds of doubleruff collar almost covering the mannequins' heads; these in sumptuous shades of royal blue, slate gray or flower prints. Under them were silk dresses, often with the floppy neck ruffle, or the sheerest chiffon numbers, sometimes with rich rhinestone trim, sometimes with a new detail like shepherdess sleeves.

Doctor cites lifestyle role in illnesses

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — "We are caught in the 'lifestyle' diseases," says Dr. Mary McLaughlin, Director of Community Medicine at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center.

"Heart disease and accidents, two major killers, can be traced to a great degree to lifestyle," she explains. "One's mode of living is probably primary in the case of emphysema, cirrhosis of the liver and at least two types of cancer. It is also a basic factor in venereal disease, in alcoholism, in obesity, in the ills resulting from drug abuse."

Lifestyle plays a primary or contributory role in chronic illnesses such as mental illness, ulcer, diabetes, and, in the case of stroke, it is an important element, she adds.

"We need to dust off some of the old-fashioned, common sense health rules even though this may require some radical changes in the way we live," says the physician, former Commissioner of Health for New York City and later Commissioner of Health for Suffolk County.

Dr. McLaughlin cites a study of 7,000 adults who were followed for over five years. After that period of time, the health status of those in the group who consistently observed seven prescribed health rules was roughly the same as people 30 years younger who did not follow any special health regimen.

The study was conducted by Dr. Lester Breslow, Dean of the School of Public Health, University of California at Los Angeles, and Dr. N.B. Belloc of the Human Population Laboratory of the California State Department of Public Health.

The study concluded, Dr. McLaughlin says, that people can add a decade or more to their life expectancy by adopting these simple health habits:

—Eat three meals a day at regular intervals. Don't substitute snacks for meals.

—Have breakfast every day.

—Exercise moderately by walking, biking, swimming, gardening or the like. Take this exercise two or three times a week.

—Sleep seven or eight hours a night.

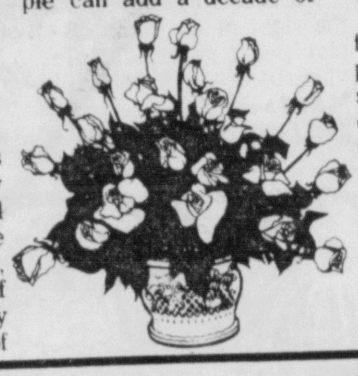

—Don't smoke.

—Maintain moderate weight.

—Don't drink or, if you must, drink in moderation.

To this Dr. McLaughlin adds, "Fasten your seat belt." The principal cause of death for men age 15 to 44 is automobile accidents.

"We do not have cures for many of today's primary health problems," she says. "We have no vaccine to prevent alcoholism nor do we have a pill to cure lung cancer. Our only real hope, then, lies in prevention. Only by repatterning our behavior to eliminate destructive habits can we practice prevention."

Avoiding the rocky road best

If you're planning a long summer trip with the children, here are some rules of thumb that may help keep the kids from under your fingernails.

For a child to get the full benefit of a trip, he or she should be given certain responsibilities, says Dr. Edith M. Dowley, a special consultant to Hallmark Cards for children's books.

Tell the child what sights can be seen and let him select a few as his choices.

Encourage your child to pack his or her own luggage — well ahead of time, Dr. Dowley suggests.

"Before you start a trip, the child should be oriented on what to expect. You might even use relief maps to explain geography. Give children lots and lots of information, and don't forget to let them ask about what they don't understand."

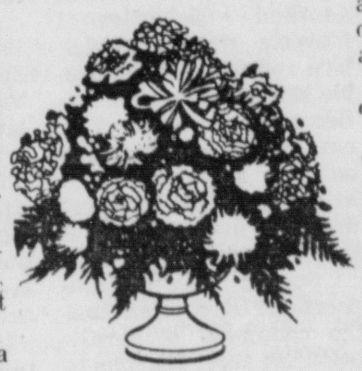

Man does not live by bread alone. He also needs peanut butter. Or some such thing. Dr. Dowley suggests that children become involved in planning the "snack" menu for your car, air or boat trip. Suggest foods that are easily preserved: fruit, crackers, jelly, fruit drinks.

It's important to bring a "piece of home" along on the trip, says Dr. Dowley. "The longer the trip, the more the child needs part of home going along."

Let your child bring a favorite toy or toys, the doctor suggests. Remember the toy shouldn't be one that inconveniences the rest of the family.

A "Trip and Travel" book from Hallmark is especially designed to pack hours of educational leisure time activity into a very "packable" book. Children might also work together making a poster. Some jigsaw puzzles are small enough to be worked in the back seat of a car or in an airplane seat. Larger puzzles are handy for motel nights.

Dr. Dowley also suggests a "bag of tricks" that Mom or Dad keeps an eye on. Take note when the kids are especially restless and surprise them with a coloring book, a puzzle, or an interesting pop-up book that can be read aloud to the group.

BOUQUET

When it comes to games, "Keep competition fair," Dr. Dowley says. "You can't expect children to be equal. It's like golf. People can't be competitive without handicaps."

Parents should be attuned to the following tips for traveling with children:

—When making reservations for travel or lodging, ask about special accommodations and special rates for children.

—When traveling by air or boat, ask stewards and stewardesses what games are available for children.

—If you travel by car, bring along some blankets and pillows so the little ones can take a comfortable nap.

—Check menus for children's portions.

—If a baby sitter must be used while traveling, leave two or three children together.

Finally, Dr. Dowley advises, make sure to collect items for a scrapbook. "Scrapbooks add a sense of continuity to a trip and they complete the cycle in the child's mind."

Summer fashions are feminine

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The comeback of a really feminine woman is the couture news for next summer. She's as female as Eve, as nymphet-sexy as Lolita, as pampered as Scarlett O'Hara.

After years of slick, hardedge chic, and transitions of recent seasons, the Paris designers have gone all out for silhouettes that men would like to look at, and touch.

It's a step back for women's lib, maybe, but a boon for anybody who likes to, and has the means to, dress up.

Paris high fashion may be remote and inaccessible to ordinary mortals, but it's still alive and vital, as a great show to promote the couture's sidelines.

Folklore is ever present, but peasant and other more exotic outfits are more refined than ever.

Voluptuous and curvy, the clothes show new supple fullness, especially in gathered tops and ballooning full sleeves, full dirndls or knife-pleated skirts of every possible pleat width. And there's a ruffle explosion that looks like more than a passing fancy.

Soft fabrics floating by in clouds of fabulous colors go side by side with bubbly lightweight gazar taffeta, adorned with miles of maypole ribbons, eyelet, lace and fringe. Long double skirts with duster ruffles or aprons go back to our tintyped ancestors. It's as fussy and complicated as it sounds, but the great designers manage to put it together coherently.

Couture lengths are debatable for daytime, and the consensus is mostly below the knee. The mini is not quite a comeback, though Cardin and a couple of others howed very brief tunics in sportswear. The knee peeked out shyly at Dior and more boldly at Balmain. Bouncy knee-length evening dresses at Balmain and Givenchy look like a trend to come.

Designers nearly passed up women's trousers, but Saint Laurent gave them a new look with boxy jackets piped in braid paired with blouses feminized by bowed pierrot ruffled necks and cuffs.

Colors for daytime are as soft as the cotton voile, flannel, jersey, or crepe de chine fabrics. They start with white and beige, and range through navy and some pastel shades with big dashes of bright red or green for good measure.

But Paris couture was mainly a soiree story. Draped or biascut Greek tunics at Cardin vied with floppily bloused tunics in a length from Renaissance inspiration at the house of Schiaparelli for a return to ancient history.

Other influences marked the shows — especially Spanish, Creole, gypsy and Victorian grandma, the latter at Saint Laurent.

His romantic ruffles applied in profusion to scoop or high necks, shepherdess sleeves, and all the way down skirts looked like beacons for next year's ready-to-wear.

Nudity is fine for next summer, as long as you show it under a very expensive, possibly ruffled transparent gown, as at Saint Laurent, Cardin, and Hanae Mori. Small bosoms at the couture shows bounced gently by, and little evidence of bras was seen — which is OK for a streamlined model.

The peasant girls who appeared a couple of seasons ago in Paris ready-to-wear got a new lift. At Lanvin they turned out in puffy silk skirts, long sleeveless boleros over big blouses. Guy Laroche produced exquisite naive dresses embroidered with cross-stitch and flowers. Givenchy made it all beautifully ladylike, and loaded it with finished details in a rather Spanish-gypsy vein — ball fringes, coins on chains and flounces.

The details not to forget for Paris spring-summer include full and puffy sleeves, and cinched wasp-waists, sometimes girthed by corselet belts. Or the waist is eased with bloused off shoulder or drawstring-tied scoop-necks over sashes, bowed belts or ribboned cummerbunds.

Sleeveless boleros or squared "paletot" toppers give the suit a new look, but don't forget to be ruffled for evening. Black is ever-present and chic after dark, but every color in the rainbow came out — in solid shades of taffeta, flower prints, stripes. From soft and subtle mauves, baby pinks, leafy greens, to the brassier looks of apple and lime green, fire-engine red, shocking pink and deep purple, everything was there in sumptuous solids and prints — a blaze of glory for the fabric industry.

Versatility in robes is offered

Whether for the bedroom or library, patio or poolside, Pierre Cardin's collection of robes, pajamas and loungewear for Spring and Summer carry the hallmarks of versatility and variety in both design and wear.

There is a complete spectrum of styling in the designer's collection of robes. From terrycloth trenchcoats to kimonos and hooded monks' robes, the emphasis is on maxi-length looks of complete luxury, often with deep sewn-down cuffs, ample collars and full sashes.

Of special interest are robes coupled with sleep pants which can easily serve for just lounging. These include mixed and matched patternings such as the wide satin-stripe pants combined with a robe in a giant satin stripe plaid in the same colors of white and sand; or the caftan-like paisley printed voile robe, with the same print utilized for the heavier weight cotton pants.

A sheer white cotton "big shirt" is combined with white drawstring duck pants, or a kimono in tiny window pane check with contrasting color trim is coupled with pants in the contrasting fabric for a polite/negative effect.

Stretch terry jog suits feature bold geometric contour designs, and classic pajamas in solids, stripes and prints with matching or contrasting piping are cut for just plain comfort.

Ideal for the gentleman who wants comfort in wear and ease in care are Cardin's new close-to-the-body pajamas trimly styled in fine nylon tricot in a full range of solid colors.

Nutrition labels

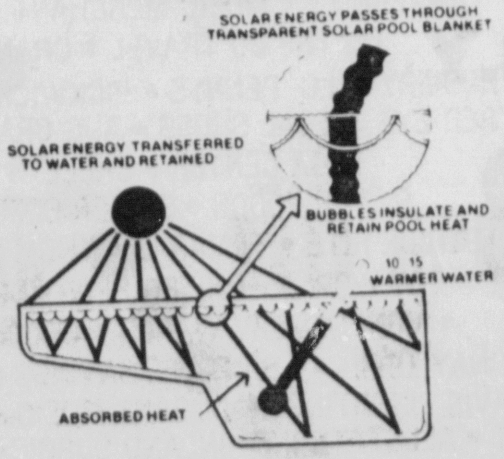

As more and more products are carrying nutritional labeling, it's important that the consumer know exactly what information is on the label. For when used properly, nutritional labeling can be an essential tool for selecting a sound, balanced diet, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. It can also help the shopper get more food value for each dollar spent and aid in meal planning for special diets.

Nutritional labeling is still essentially voluntary, although it is required for fortified and enriched foods and products for which a nutrition claim is made. If a food company elects to use nutrition labeling, as many are, they must follow a standard format developed by the Food and Drug Administration.

The label must appear on the right of the main display panel under the title "Nutrition - Information." Mandatory on every package, calories in one serving and protein, carbohydrates and fat in grams per serving. Also included must be the percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances for protein, the vitamins, A, C, thiamin, riboflavin and niacin and the minerals calcium and iron.

Great-looking feet and legs

As fashions become briefer in the months ahead and sandals replace shoes, feet and legs are on display. Bare healthy-looking limbs and feet by starting a grooming routine now, recommends The Soap and Detergent Association.

Start in the bath or shower, where warm water helps to soften skin. Gently scrub heels and knees with a soft, sudsy brush or pumice stone to remove dead skin and callouses. Scrub toenails and in-between toes. It's also an opportune time to shave legs. Employ a sharp razor to whisk away hairs readied with lots of soapsuds lather. Rinse, towel dry.

After the bath, massage cream or lotion on feet and legs, paying particular attention to heels and knees. Finish up by filing nails straight across and polish, if desired.

You'll find that daily foot care, like a daily bath or shower, is healthy and refreshing all year 'round.

Recycled paper proves old news is good news

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new kind of paper money in circulation.

In Wisconsin, it is helping to build a church. In New Jersey, it has provided a dozen college scholarships. It's used for buying playground equipment in Michigan, supporting the handicapped in California and financing a training plane for Air Scout troops in Ohio. It is, in fact, the sole support of one gentleman in California.

The source of this paper money? Old newspapers.

Hundreds of organizations have discovered that they can aid the environment and help themselves at the same time by collecting newspapers for recycling, according to John H. Veidt, chairman of the Paper Stock Conservation Committee of the American Paper Institute, the group that monitors the flow of waste paper nationally.

"Old newspapers are an important raw material used by the nation's 230 recycling mills for tomorrow's products," Veidt explains. "Newsprint, cereal boxes and other types of food and household packaging, stationery, cartons, insulation, building materials and dozens of other new products are now being made from recycled paper. The demand outlook for waste paper is good, and, with waste paper dealers offering a ready market for clean, bundled newspapers, paper drives have become a prime fund-raising tool."

In Shelby Township, Mich., for example, a recycling center has been in operation for five years, manned by ecology-minded volunteers. They collect an average of 27 tons of paper a month, which helps reduce the waste disposal problem in their community.

The group has netted more than $27,000 to date for their efforts, money that has been used to landscape schools, plant trees along city roads, buy ecology teaching materials for the schools and provide all of the play equipment for Shelby's new children's park.

In addition, 12,000 plants, bulbs and small trees have been given away to those who bring paper to the center — as a thank you and a way to further beautify the community.

When the project started, its organizers never expected to make money, says one volunteer. The intention was to encourage recycling. Citizens were concerned with the amount of reusable waste that ended up as litter or in alrea overflowing landfills.

"It was a tremendous bonus to find that recycling can be so profitable," says Marietta Crabtree, project director. "The center has made it possible to aid many other environmental projects and to make the town more beautiful. The volunteers really see the result of their efforts and they are amazingly loyal. They've worked in 90 degree heat and have tramped through 18 inches of snow in the winter to make sure the center stays open."

Unexpected profits were also a pleasant surprise for the "Old Guard," a senior citizen group in Bricktown, N.J. The club began collecting paper ten years ago to help finance their recreational activities. They've not only supported themselves, but had enough left over to donate a dozen scholarships to local high school students.

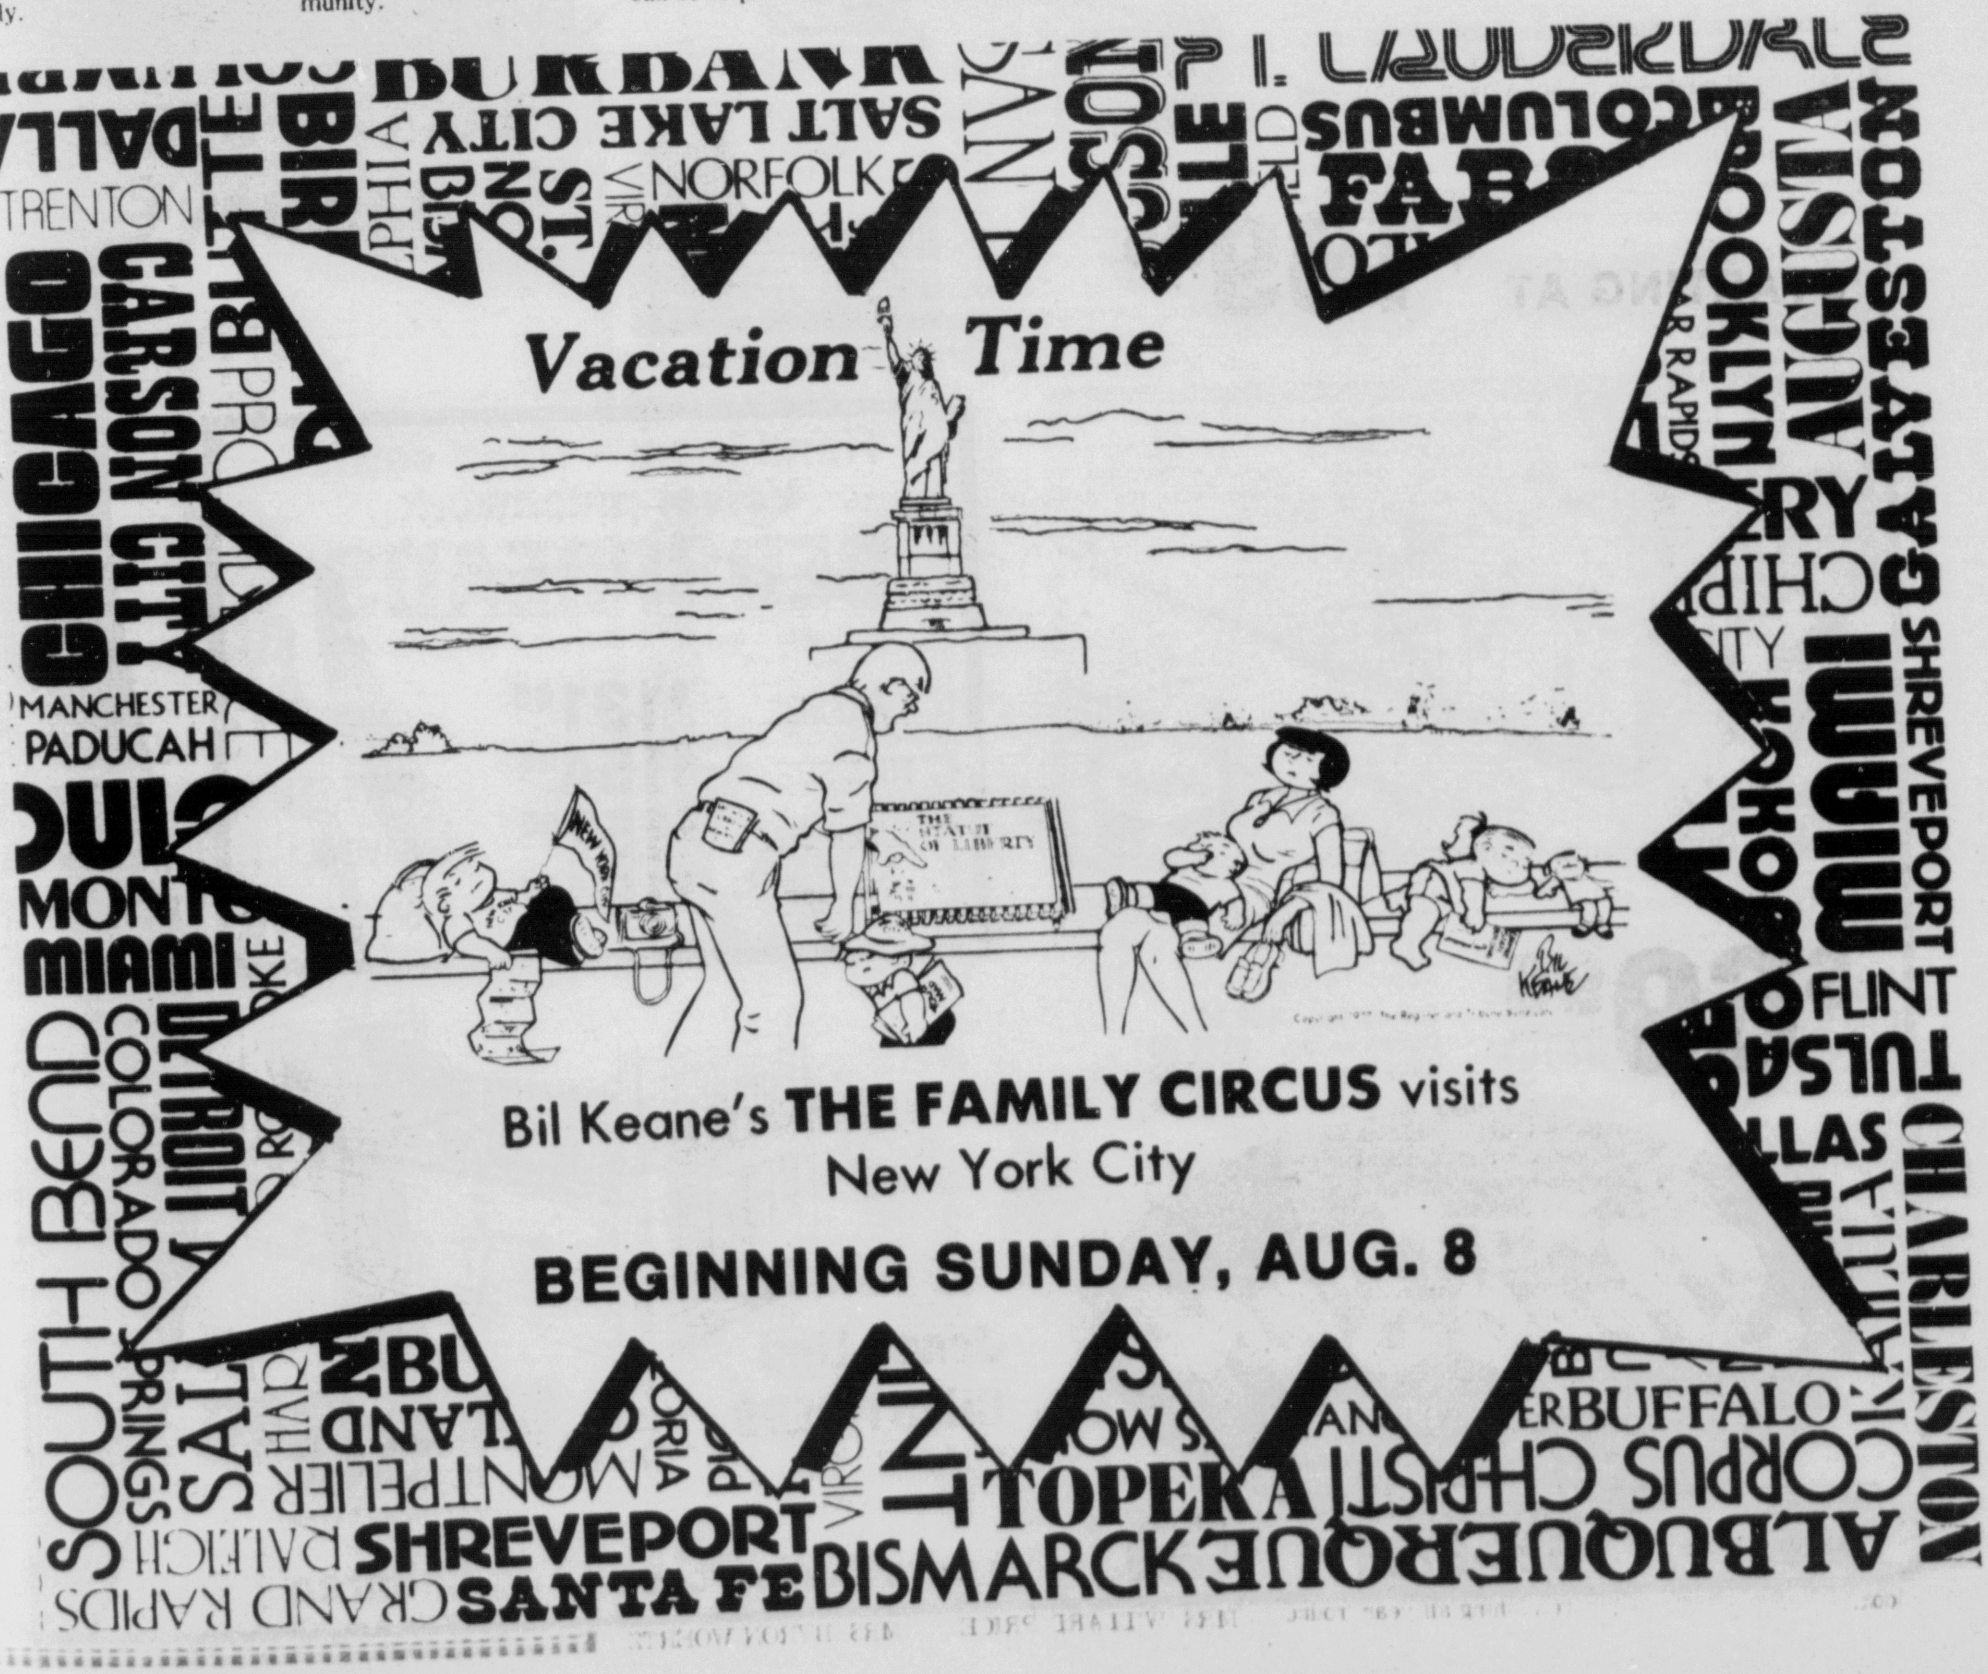

Many of the members living on fixed incomes didn't have a lot of extra money, and so they turned to paper recycling. Despite the average age of the Old Guard, the group collects nearly 35 tons per month using special equipment to reduce the amount of lifting and carrying work involved in paper recycling.

Veidt cites many other examples of profitable paper drives. A 250-member Boy Scout troop in Antioch, Calif., is earning $1,000 a month in an ongoing paper collection drive. A Pennsylvania marching band bought new uniforms and paid for a trip to Florida, and a church in Ohio re-paved its parking lot — all with funds from newspaper drives.

Probably the most unusual use of paper proceeds, Veidt reports, was the purchase of two training planes by the Astro Air Explorers in Berea, Ohio. Their success has inspired the Air Scouts in nearby Middleburg Heights, who report they are well on the way to their own "paper airplane."

Then there's that gentleman in California. Spotted by TV crews visiting a Los Angeles waste paper dealer, the man declined to give his name, but did say, "A lot of people recycle paper for fun or to help the environment, but I do it for a living. By collecting papers all day, I make enough to live on."

While Veidt doesn't advocate going into business for yourself, he does advise interested organizations that there is plenty of opportunity for newcomers who want to get on the recycling bandwagon. The first step is to contact a local waste paper dealer, listed in the Yellow Pages under "Waste Paper." Dealers will help organize a program and will buy the paper collected, Veidt says. They may also provide helpful literature and materials.
